Ossining Board Urged to Keep Emergency Tenant Protection Act

By Rick Pezzullo

A throng of residents and community leaders implored the Ossining Village Board last week not to repeal the Emergency Tenant Protection Act (ETPA) that was enacted last September.

On September 5, the board narrowly voted to establish the ETPA following years of controversy over affordable housing and rent stabilization within the village. However, with Trustee Manuel Quezada having replaced John Codman, a proponent of ETPA, it appears Mayor Victoria Gearity and Trustee Rika Levin, who voted against the measure five months ago, now have the upper hand to get rid of the law.

Ossining became the 20th municipality to enact the state law. Other Westchester communities, including Croton-on-Hudson, Dobbs Ferry, Sleepy Hollow, Pleasantville and Tarrytown, have implemented ETPA.

Under the act, the village is required to enforce a rent stabilization policy for all buildings constructed before 1974 with six or more units.

ETPA ensures that tenants are offered one or two-year leases and that apartments receive proper maintenance. It

Somers Town Board Pursuing Marijuana Sale Ban

By Neal Rentz

In response to the push by Governor Andrew Cuomo to legalize the recreational use of marijuana, the Somers Town Board is seeking to ban the sale of the drug.

The Town Board voted unanimously on February 7 to set a public hearing for March 7 at 7 p.m. on legislation that will be drafted by Town Attorney Roland Baroni.

At last week's meeting, Supervisor Rick Morrissey said he was seeking a way to ban the selling of marijuana in response to Cuomo's proposal.

"In my mind, marijuana is a gateway drug," Morrissey said.

Morrissey said town Police Chief Michael Driscoll and the Partners in Prevention have expressed their opposition to the legalization of recreational use of mari-

The town could consider barring the sale of marijuana and pass the local law should the proposed state legislation be enacted, Baroni said. If the state legislation is approved, the town cannot bar recreational use of marijuana but could ban its sale, he

While there were some comments from Town Board members that acknowledged there are differences of opinion throughout the country regarding the legalization of marijuana, Morrissey's colleagues joined the supervisor in seeking to ban the sale of marijuana.

Councilman Anthony Cirieco said the state has estimated that legalization would bring in $300 million annually in new tax revenue. Councilman Richard Clinchy said the prospect of additional tax revenue should not be a motivation for the state to legalize recreational marijuana use.

Cirieco said Cuomo is proposing to allow large cities and counties to opt out of the marijuana legalization should it be passed by the state Legislature, but would not provide that option to towns and villages.

Clinchy said he was particularly concerned that if marijuana was legal more youths would use the drug.

also protects tenants from being evicted except on grounds allowed by law, illegal rent increases, landlord harassment, and all a rent freeze for certain senior citizens and people with disabilities.

In Ossining, more than 1,200 apartments are eligible for rent stabilization, making it the largest expansion of rent stabilized housing in the state in two decades.

Following a spirited rally in the streets that spilled into the Birdsall-Fagan Police Court Facility on Spring Street last Wednesday, about 25 individuals spoke at a public hearing for about 90 minutes, with the overwhelming majority vehemently against repealing ETPA.

"I believe our village may be turning its head, for a moment, away from what is right," said Julie Gross, a more than 50-year village resident and former Ossining High School teacher. "What happened in the last five months? What pressures have you had? Where are our values? Where are our concerns for our neighbors who can only live here under rent control? This is not who we are."

"To repeal would be striking a blow at the essential character of this community," said David Schwartz, vice chairman of the Westchester/Putnam Working Families Party. "Do not let self interest trump achieving fairness in this community."

Mel Tanzman, executive director of the Westchester Disabled on the Move, said he was speaking for 3,600 seniors with disabilities in Ossining who "deserve the right to live in housing that is affordable, accessible and safe."

"The proposal to repeal the Emergency Tenant Protection Act in the Village of Ossining would strip them of the only legal protection available to them in New York State," Tanzman said. "The human cost to our residents and community is far too great. It's simply bad policy."

The proposal was also criticized by local clergy and caught the attention of a councilwoman in Newburgh, State Senator David Carlucci, Westchester County Legislator Catherine Borgia and Peekskill Councilwoman Vanessa Agudelo, who said she was "incredibly disappointed" the Ossining board would consider doing away with the ETPA.

"Give it more than five months. It's cruel not taking into consideration what you have heard from people that you serve," Agudelo remarked. "ETPA is not the solution, it's not perfect, (but) it is protecting a large part of your population that is the most vulnerable."

Linda Mangano, a 34-year resident and owner of a two-family home, was in the minority supporting abolishing the law, contending it had "outlived its usefulness."

"We are a country of capitalism. We all have right to earn money, including landlords," she said. "I want government to stay out of my wallet."

Trustees Omar Herrera and Quantel Bazemore, who supported the ETPA last year and continue to be strong advocates, ripped their colleagues for considering repealing the measure. Herrera also suggested Quezada may have a conflict of interest since he is a landlord in the village.

"I don't play with people's lives and their paychecks," Herrera said. "What is being done here is completely unacceptable."

"The way some of my colleagues have dealt with ETPA is truly in poor taste. They have bought into rhetoric," Bazemore charged. "We are all in this together. We are all Democrats. Act like it."

Quezada, who rejoined the board in January following his election last November, said he does own a two-family home and will make his decision based on what "benefits the village as a whole."

"I tend to focus all my energy on the public and the community itself," he said. "I understand a lot of the struggles that a lot of people have."

Levin said she cannot support the ETPA because "it is not income based," adding, "It is only about what building you happen to live in and that makes it inequitable and unfair to all those people."

Gearity penned a long column on her website explaining her reasons why she opposes the ETPA.

"The Village of Ossining's two greatest housing challenges are substandard housing and an inadequate supply of affordable housing for the people who need it most. ETPA does not address these concerns, and actually makes these problems worse," she stated. "There has been a lot of misleading and misguided messaging surrounding the ETPA conversation. The good news for people concerned about preserving and expanding affordability of housing in Ossining, is that there are effective actions we can take."

The board voted to accept written comments on the proposal until Friday, February 15. No date was set for a vote on the measure.

Pain Shooting Down One Leg?

What you need to know about symptoms and treatment of sciatica...

Q: Do I have sciatica?

A: You probably do if you feel a sudden and severe pain, along with numbness and weakness, radiating from the buttocks down the back of one leg to the foot. The pain can be crippling. It is usually intense when you walk, diminishing when you lie down.

Q: What causes sciatica?

A: The sciatic nerve branches from the spine in the lower back through the hips and buttocks and runs down the back of each leg to the foot. Sciatica occurs when this nerve is pinched in the lower back by spinal disc herniation – protruding disc material – or by a larger fragment of disc material. Disc herniation usually occurs during normal activities, such as rising from bed.

Q: Am I at risk for sciatica?

A: Sciatica is common. More than three million Americans are diagnosed with the condition annually.* Apart from the fact that 10 to 15 percent of patients have a family history of back problems, there are no risk factors. No behavior predisposes you to it.

Q: What are my treatment options?

A: If you have sciatica and it is not severe, you will typically receive oral steroids (anti-inflammatories) for seven days. Once you're more mobile, you will engage in physical therapy for a period of time and then be re-evaluated. If your symptoms persist, you may receive an injection of steroids at the nerve root to reduce pain. If this regimen fails, physicians will offer surgery. However, if a patient comes in unable to stand – basically bed-bound – we advise surgery sooner. It is important to know that 80 to 90 percent of patients get better without surgery.

Q: What can I expect from surgery for sciatica?

A: This minimally invasive procedure takes under an hour, and consists of removing the disc material pressing on the nerve. Most patients are pain-free following surgery. We have seen patients who arrived unable to stand or walk for more than a few minutes, walk out the same day after surgery, completely asymptomatic. Sciatica recurs in ten percent of people, who may suffer recurrent bouts of the condition throughout their life.

Community Honors Loss of PV Teenager Elias Knapp

Putnam Valley has been a community in mourning the past two weeks following a tragic accident that resulted in the death of 17-year-old Elias Knapp.

Knapp, a student at Putnam Valley High School, died days after he accidentally shot himself while horsing around with friends earlier this month. At his wake Saturday, a long line of people wrapped around Yorktown Funeral Home to pay respects and show an absolute outpouring of love to the Knapp family.

Around 7:46 p.m. on February 1, deputies from the Sheriff's Department responded to a radio call of a selfinflicted gunshot wound to the head at 56 Ridge Ave. in Putnam Valley after a friend of Knapp called 911 to report the accident, according to the Putnam County Sheriff's Department. When deputies arrived, they saw Knapp with an apparent gunshot wound to his head with three friends also present, the Sheriff's Department said.

Deputies, EMS workers and a medic tried to administer aide to Knapp, who was still breathing when they arrived, authorities sad. He was transported by the Mahopac Falls ambulance to then be airlifted to Westchester Medical

A decision was made days later to take Knapp off life support and his organs were donated, according to his father, Steven Knapp, who posted on a gofundme page that was set up by a town resident to help raise money for funeral expenses.

"His heart was pure gold, he was a nurturing loving young person still in search of himself," Steven said on the gofundme page, adding. "Please, remember him for the good and great things that he did throughout his childhood."

The Sheriff's Department is still investigating the matter as of last Thursday. No charges have been filed.

Our deepest condolences go out to the Knapp family," the Sheriff's Department stated.

In his obituary, Knapp was described as a loving son, grandson, brother and friend who leaves behind his father, Steven, mother, Helena, two older sisters and three surviving grandparents. He also leaves behind his longtime girlfriend, Amanda Faul, who is a Putnam Valley High School student.

Instead of sending flowers, the Knapp family requests people consider volunteering a few hours to an organization in Elias's memory.

"He enjoyed the outdoors, hiking, camping, and riding his dirt bike. He loved playing video games, music, and spending time with family and friends," part of his obituary stated. "He had a special connection with animals, especially his dogs, and had an unrivaled and witty sense of humor."

The gofundme page has raised more than $22,000 with 370 people contributing in eight days as of Sunday night. The original funding goal was $7,500.

The organizer of the fundraiser is Lenore Fontanez, who has known the Knapp family for more than two decades. She worked at a local deli where she would see Steve and Elias Knapp come in on occasion. Elias would also drive by Fontanaz's home every day on his quad or dirt bike, sometimes cutting through their yard to get to the deli.

Fontanez said she interacted with the Knapp family one way or another almost daily, which made the news of Elias's accident even more sickening.

"Literally my heart sunk," she said. "I sat there in disbelief saying, 'I cannot believe this."

The community has also put bright blue lights all throughout town to re-

Community Congress Holds Final Forum Before Vote

By Rick Pezzullo

Peekskill Community Congress held its third and final public forum Saturday at Peekskill Middle School before a citywide vote is taken in mid-March.

The Community Congress is a nonpartisan initiative that gives residents the opportunity to address issues they are most concerned with, identify shared priorities, and engage in finding solutions to move Peekskill forward.

The first forum was held in December at the United Methodist Church, followed by a second forum in January at Peekskill Brewery. At the three forums combined, 38 residents and local leaders presented proposals that will be presented on a ballot that will be mailed to about 10,000 residents, each of whom will be asked to rank their top three ideas.

"This gives the community the power to set the agenda," group facilitator Jason Angell said to about 100 onlookers at the middle school Saturday. "This is about a community coming together and seeing what people of Peekskill care about."

Any resident 13 years old or older was invited to sign up to share their priority to better Peekskill. On Saturday, 15 residents came forward to outline their proposal in three minutes or less.

Valerie Eaton, president of the Peekskill NAACP, urged residents to lobby for Group facilitator Jason Angell chats with Peekskill NAACP President Valerie Eaton Saturday at Peekskill Middle School.

Peekskill to have an early voting polling place, which the state Board of Elections would have to approve since Peekskill has less than 50,000 registered voters. Having a polling place would give residents up to nine days prior to Election Day to cast a ballot.

Deb Milone, president of the Hudson

"Create a magical environment that people from all over will want to come and see," Milone said. "This will also attract positive publicity for our city. Let's make Peekskill a visual wonderland in December. If you light it, they will come."

Margaret Steele, an eight-year resident who works in an art loft downtown, proposed establishing a vision map to transform Peekskill into a model walkable city.

"We have a chance to be a leader in this," she said. "We are just a walkable city by default. We are not pedestrianfriendly."

Other proposals included setting up a council to serve as advocates for the elderly, adding more street lights, forming a committee to research ways to build an outdoor covered facility for ice skating and hockey in the winter and graduations and concerts in the warmer months, and providing more jobs for youths.

The ideas that receive the most votes from the ballots mailed in March will become the Community Congress' prime focus, Angell said. Once the votes are tabulated and the results are revealed, an "action oriented fair" forum will be held.

"The hope is that out of the process, what rises to the top are what people share in common," Angell said. "One thing about all the leaders in the community who devout so much time...it is so hopeful. There are so many people already looking at things."

Yorktown Democrat First to Announce Bid for Kaplowitz's Seat

By Martin Wilbur

Vedat Gashi enjoyed his first run for public office so much that three months later he's ready to do it again.

Gashi, a Yorktown Democrat who lost his initial bid for public office last November to Assemblyman Kevin Byrne in the 94th state Assembly District race, announced last week that he will be running for the seat being vacated by Michael Kaplowitz on the Board of Legislators in District 4. The district is comprised of portions of Yorktown and Somers and all of New Castle.

less of who his successor may be, Gashi said he's looking to pick up the mantle and represent the district with a similar drive and attention to detail as the longtime incumbent.

"I think it leaves a void and I think it comes at a time when we have some pressing questions before us," said Gashi, 40, a real estate attorney. "I think it's a challenge. I think there's a need and I'd love to advocate on behalf of what I regard as a changing or emerging demographic up here."

Among the top pressing issues facing the district and Westchester is helping the county get back on firm financial footing. Last year, Westchester's bond rating was reduced from the highest to the second highest level by Standard & Poor's, Fitch and Moody's.

Vedat Gashi

Gashi said he will also look to assist each of the district's municipalities push forward its long-stalled sewer projects. The three towns each have a project drawn up that will address the issue of failing septic systems in certain areas and prevent pollution in the New York City reservoirs.

The issue has been a problem that has thus far proven to be insurmountable to overcome. Yorktown, Somers and New Castle have each been promised $10 million each in East of Hudson funds the county is holding that were derived from New York City in 1997. There is nearly $30 million remaining, however, there are other communities that are also looking to tap into that funding, he said.

"I think all three together and separately can make a pretty strong argument to get a little more funds in there to get to the promised amounts and get that increased funding from the city and the state," Gashi said. "They all benefit from that."

With his announcement, Gashi became the first candidate in either party for the seat. The new election schedule represents recently passed by the state, will see candidates begin the five-week petition process on Feb. 26 to get on the ballot, he said. If any race goes to a primary, that will be held in late June.

Although Gashi, who came to the United States from Kosovo with his parents when he was four years old, said he hasn't heard of any other candidates for the seat yet in either major party, he is ready for any challengers. He said he intends to eschew partisan politics and represent all residents, not just those in Democratic strongholds.

"I think you're doing the position a disservice by catering to just one part of the district," Gashi said. "We govern for every-body and the job is to be a representative not of the Democratic areas but the whole district, for everybody who lives here."

Local Candidates Line Up to Run for Testa's County Seat

By Rick Pezzulle

Westchester County Legislator John Testa still has more than 10 months left representing residents in District 1, but a handful of Republican candidates are already lining up to fill his seat.

Throwing their hat in the ring to date are former Peekskill Mayor Frank Catalina, Yorktown Councilman Tom Diana, Yorktown GOP Committee Vice Chairman Chris Arnold and Yorktown district leaders Rob Puff and Raymond St. John.

Candidates are scheduled to be interviewed by the Westchester Republican County Committee Saturday morning, February 16 at Cortlandt Colonial Restaurant. On Wednesday, February 20, at the same location, district leaders will choose a candidate to run in November in District 1, which covers parts of Cortlandt, Peekskill and Yorktown.

Meanwhile, Peekskill Councilman Colin Smith, a Democrat, is planning to announce his intentions to enter the race today (Tuesday) at BeanRunner Cafe. District 1 has been represented by a Republican for many decades

HVGCC Honors Businesses, Non-Profits and Individuals

The Hudson Valley Gateway Chamber of Commerce honored several member businesses, non-profits, and individuals at its annual Awards Ceremony on January 26 at the Mansion at Colonial Terrace in Cortlandt. More than 200 business, community and government leaders were on hand to applaud the honorees.

"It is important to recognize our local businesses, non-profits and individuals who make a difference in our community. This year's honorees exemplify the positive and meaningful impact they have on our lives all year round. While we honor each of them, they actually honor us with their ongoing contributions to the betterment of our region," said Deb Milone, President, Hudson Valley Gateway Chamber of Commerce.

Buchanan-based Continental Building Products was honored as the chamber's Business of the Year for its commitment to the community and its employees. Continental is installing a roof top solar panel system, which when completed, will be the largest in New York State. Expected completion is Spring 2019, when area residents will have the opportunity to purchase low cost power through a program with Con Edison. In addition, the local plant maintains one of the best safety records in the company.

Jim Witt was honored with the chamber's Volunteer of the Year Award for his charitable work with the Hope for Youth Foundation. Witt is best known for his long-range weather calendars that predict what the weather will be like years, even decades, ahead. He turned his passion for weather into helping kids when he co-founded the Hope for Youth Foundation in 1986. Since its founding, HFYF has raised and donated more than $3.7 million to children's charities from the calendar sales and other fundraising efforts.

Justin Wingenroth was honored with the chamber's Young Professional of the Year Award. Wingenroth is a dance instructor with more than 15 years of experience in teaching ballet, jazz, musical theater, lyrical and tap, who now operates The Dance Conservatory in the Peekskill/Cortlandt area, providing quality dance education in a safe, warm and inviting environment.

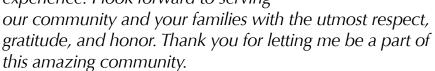

Chereese Jervis-Hill was honored with the Chamber's Chairman's Award for her involvement with chamber events and her professional achievements at Events To Remember, a boutique events management and public relations firm. Jervis-Hill has received numerous awards and recognitions, including recently being named one of Westchester's Leading Businesswomen from 914INC. Magazine.

She is survived by her three sons, grandchildren Kristen, Jonathon, Christian, Andrea, and Zoe and great-grandchildren, Rebekah, Rachael and Tessa.

Lia Brennan

Lia Janice Brennan, a resident of Jefferson Valley, died peacefully February 4, 2019, in her home surrounded by her family and her faithful bodyguard, Shadow, her loving Chihuahua. She was 83.

Born Cornelia Janice Luttenberg on July 6, 1935, in Manhattan, to John and Janice Luttenberg (surname later changed to Bal). Shortly after her birth, the family moved to Woodside, Queens NY where she spent her childhood. She attended the High School of Performing Arts in NYC for two years and later graduated from PS 125 in Oueens.

She served in the United States Air Force as a personnel specialist from 1953-1955 at Lackland Air Force base in San Antonio, TX. During that time, she was with the WAF (Woman in the Air Force) where she performed as a singer and actress in the All WAF shows. Later in her service, she received the National Defense Service medal.

After her time in the Air Force, she worked several jobs from telephone operator to cigarette girl at the Copacabana, in its heyday. In 1965, she married John Brennan (Div. 1993) and settled in Jefferson Valley, in 1970, where she lived for 49 years. During that time, she worked for the United States Postal Service in Jefferson Valley as a senior clerk for more than 20 years.

She is survived by her children Liane Buttiglire of Jefferson Valley, Lauren Stellwagen (Michael Stellwagen) of Somers, and John Glenn Brennan of Bedford Hills, her grandchildren, Michael, Christopher and Caitlyn Stellwagen, her sister Coralin Parker of NJ, and her brother John Andres Bal of Manhattan. She will also be lovingly remembered by her nieces and nephews who adored their Aunt Lia.

She will be remembered as a passionate writer of children's books, plays and poems. Given her extensive vocabulary, she was a fierce Scrabble player. Many times, the children were banned from entering the kitchen when she and her best friend Cathy were having an intense game that lasted for hours. Always exploring her crafty side, she had enjoyed photography, sewing, and crocheting. Lia's favorite pastimes were bingo and musical theatre, especially if her granddaughter was in a performance. She will be sorely missed by her grandchildren who affectionately called her "Meema."

The Troop F Child Abuse Unit in Orange County announced the arrest of Eduardo Talentino (aka Elder Talentino), 53, of Monroe, NY and Margaret Patterson (aka Charlene Patterson), 79, of Lake Peekskill. Both subjects were charged with committing the Educational Law Felony, of Unauthorized Practice of a Profession. A joint Investigation with Orange County Child Protective Services and Orange County Fraud revealed that Patterson, a licensed MSW (Master of Social Work), was aiding and abetting Talentino, who was purporting to be both a psychologist and/or psychiatrist with a PHD but was treating clients without a license. The investigation also revealed that Talentino was also purporting to be an FBI agent. Patterson and Talentino worked in offices located at 124 Main St. in the Village of Chester and The Center for ADHD at 32 South St. in the Village of Washingtonville. Additional Charges are pending. Anyone who has information regarding Talentino and Patterson are asked to contact the Orange County Child Abuse Unit at 845-291-2810. All calls will be kept confidential.

February 2 - State Police arrested Latascha N. Kelly, 47, of Cortlandt, for Falsely Reporting an Incident in the 3rd degree, a class A misdemeanor. On February 1, at approximately 11:13 p.m., troopers responded to Lexington Avenue in the Town of Cortlandt for a domestic dispute in which the caller was reporting the suspect was holding her hostage and actively shooting at her. Investigation by the State Police, Westchester Police Department, and Yorktown Police Department including K9 units, who all responded to the emergency call, found no evidence of any shots fired in the area. The caller, later identified as Kelly, had left the scene, and told investigators when contacted by telephone that she no longer wanted assistance. Further investigation found Kelly engaged in a domestic dispute, and then falsely reported the incident to Westchester County 911 in an attempt to incriminate the victim.

Man Pleads Guilty to Child Porn, Weapons

By Rick Pezzullo

A Croton-on-Hudson man pled guilty Monday to charges of child pornography and possessing a firearm.

Westchester County Court Judge Susan Cacace accepted the plea of Christopher Alessandro, 26, to charges of attempted disseminating indecent material to minors in the first degree, a Class E felony, and attempted criminal possession of a firearm, a Class A misdemeanor.

According to Westchester County District Attorney Anthony Scarpino, Jr., on May 7, 2018, the New York State Police, in conjunction with the Virginia State Police, and the Westchester County District Attorney's Office High Technology Crime Bureau, arrested Alessandro in Croton.

In April 2018, the Virginia State Police Internet Crimes Against Children Unit contacted the New York State Police Cortlandt barracks regarding an unknown male in New York sending indecent material to a special agent posing as a 14-year-old girl. After an approximately monthlong investigation, investigators in Cortlandt and the Troop K Computer Crimes Unit identified

State Needs a New Direction Morally and Spiritually

To the Editor,

I was very pleased and honored to be a witness to the many citizens of Yorktown who participated in the Town Board meeting of Tuesday, February 5, 2019. Several speakers and a packed meeting room voiced their dismay and serious objection to the passage of the Reproductive Health Act by our New York State Legislature. Constituents of our Town as well as New York State, described the passing of R.H.A. in 2019 a tragedy; as it embraces the proposition that some living human beings do not deserve the protection of our laws, inapposite of our tradition to respect human life.

Now, by the Governor and Legislature's celebrated action, other rights guaranteed in our Constitution have no meaning. Abortion access does nothing to advance the rights of women; rather, it invites both women and men to view unborn children-their own unborn childrendisposable objects-systematically eliminating any legal recognition, no matter how meager, that an unborn child could be worthy of protection or concern. As proud Catholic; a long time parishioner of St Patricks' Church; a member of the churches several ministries and co-coordinator of its Respect Life Ministry and thirty-five year citizen of Yorktown with four daughters, I was heartened by our citizens, our mothers, fathers, women and men, all voicing a strong reminder to our Town Board that the desire to live freely is an expression of personal dignity, as we are created in the image and likeness of an Almighty God, made for a relationship with Him. Human freedom is the power to become who we, as spiritual and bodily beings, created to be from the moment of conception to natural death. We are in mourning-our state needs a course correction—not just legislatively, but also morally and spiritually.

On Tuesday night's Town Board agenda, we heard the voices of our Board exclaim the good works of our first Responders and Police Department, properly applauding their good works upholding the respect for the life of all our citizens. We heard of the strong appreciation for our Superintendent of Highways protecting the lives of citizens keeping our roadways safe and clear for travel, respecting the lives of all ages. We heard the Board applaud the good works of the Alliance of Safe Kids in their mission to save and protect the lives of our youth in our Town, respecting their dignity and life. We heard the voices of those who support affordable housing -respecting the diversity of life within our borders and the needs of many economically challenged to have affordable shelter. We also heard resoundingly from the many who spoke eloquently and forcefully that the RHA is not a Reproductive Health Act, but a Reprehensible, Harmful and an Abusive piece of legislation on the dignity of life.

Many asked for and pleaded with our Town Board's members to craft a resolution to be sent to Albany that its citizens and those entrusted for their care do indeed respect life. A life that is worth living from conception to natural death; and the actions in the passing of RHA by our elected official are wrong; deadly wrong. It is an essential part of the very core of all people of good conscience to support the lives of all, especially the voiceless, the most vulnerable and marginalized, most importantly our unborn children. Remember our first responders, officials and police; our community leaders concerned with the lives of youth; the citizens supporting our economically challenged who deserve shelter; all in all respecting and protecting life. To our Town Board: Craft the resolution to protect life. Honor those who do it every day, by signing it and sending it to Albany. Let's not bequeath to our children a culture of death.

Peace.

Former Supervisor Should Read the Bill of Rights

To the Editor,

In his vicious attack on Governor Cuomo's religious faith, Michael Grace yet again shows why the people of Yorktown so resoundingly turned him out of office. There are momentous issues facing us as a community, locally and nationally, involving deeply held beliefs. However, we need to recognize that all of us are joining this debate in good faith, as equal citizens, worthy of a fundamental respect. The message of recent elections couldn't be clearer: we are tired of these politicians who seek to exploit our differences and use honest and heartfelt differences to divide us and turn neighbor against neighbor. Mr. Grace, go back and read the Bill of Rights: it's not too late for you to learn how to contribute to a debate, rather than sow discord.

Grace Manipulates History to Advance a Personal Agenda

To the Editor,

Tuesday's Town Board Meeting in Yorktown Heights featured former Supervisor Michael Grace weighing in on New York's Reproductive Health Act with his warped, inaccurate, inflammatory and self-serving version of the RHA, which in truth, merely codifies existing law that is constitutionally based.

Michael Grace told his audience:

"The Nazis did not come to power via a violent coup detat but through a progressive campaign of propaganda slowly enveloping an uninformed, and disinterested unbelieving population.... Be forewarned it may come much more subtly. . . . Perhaps in the form of a democratically elected governor . . . signing a bill allowing for infanticide that only by the contrivances of Joseph Goebbels could be called the Reproductive Health Act."

I believe our community recognizes his manipulation of history to advance a personal agenda. The path to the Holocaust has an ancient history. A historical review reminds us that Christian anti-Semitism has not been subtle, rather it has been a tradition of centuries. Historian Raoul Hilberg summed up the pattern:

12th century Crusades- "You have no

914-864-0878

In an effort to legislate morality, it is critical for citizens in a pluralistic democracy to be scrupulously faithful to historical fact. The Holocaust was a unique genocide and as such may be analogous to other genocides, but it can not be trivialized by distorting history to serve one's political agenda. Incumbent on all of us is the duty to honor lives taken by Nazis: Jews, Christians, Roma Sinti, and all others incinerated or murdered by Nazis. As a holy endeavor we must carefully adhere to historical truths of the Holocaust. Otherwise, we dishonor the dead and pervert the truth of our human history.

No One is Pro-Abortion

To the Editor,

I am writing in response to Michael Grace's letter in The Examiner and comments at the recent Yorktown Town Board meeting regarding the passage of the Reproductive Health Act (RHA) in Albany.

Granted, abortion is a highly emotionally charged issue with which we have struggled for years. However, Mr. Grace's comparison of abortion to the Nazi's extermination of Jews is extreme hyperbole. He makes it sound like New York State is requiring women to have abortions or is actively encouraging abortion. No, New York has merely taken steps via the RHA to make sure that abortion is a safe and legal option for those who choose it.

There have been unwanted pregnancies since the dawn of humankind. And women in desperate situations have found ways to terminate those pregnancies, often losing their own lives in the process. The average women's child bearing years span 30+ years of her life. That is a long time to never make a mistake, forget to take a pill, always have enough money to purchase birth control, or avoid being raped.

No one is pro-abortion. No one encourages abortion. And no one should presume to know the circumstances or make the most personal and wrenching of decisions for a woman who is struggling with an unintended or unviable pregnancy-not the government nor the church.

Mr. Grace needn't worry that our society is marching toward another holocaust fueled by government-issued propaganda devaluing human life. The U.S. abortion rate is actually at an all-time low. For Mr. Grace and others who would like to put an end to abortion, there is a pretty simple solution: fight for comprehensive sex education and affordable, accessible contraception.

Simplifying Proposed Affordable Housing Law in Yorktown

To the Editor.

With an affordable housing set aside law under consideration in the Town of Yorktown, I am expecting misinformation to abound. It's really simple: do we want to be inclusive or exclusive. The proposed law, which only applies to developments of over 10 units, calls for 10% of units in new developments to be affordable. To qualify, a single person would have to make under approximately $50,000 per year for a rental unit and under approximately $66,000 per year to purchase a unit. For a fourperson household, the maximum income for eligibility would be approximately $71,0000 per year for a rental unit and $94,000 per year for homeownership. A deed restriction will keep the units affordable. Much of the discussion thus far has been about impact on taxes and about where the people would come from who might get the units under a lottery system.

Let's start with taxes. For baby boomers like me, who were born in the decade after World War II, the housing market was creating lots of small "starter" homes for families. When I moved to Yorktown in the late 1980s, the market was creating "McMansions." If there was regional demand for housing for the upper middle class, driven by our proximity to NYC, and there was more profit to be made building a large house, why would a developer build a small starter home that he would make less profit on? This trend took place despite the fact that there was a diminishing supply of smaller homes, and high demand for them which was driving up the prices.

It doesn't take a brain surgeon to know that smaller homes have a lower assessment and pay lower taxes. Back in the 1950s, did anyone call for only building large houses, so that each one would pay higher taxes than most of the existing Yorktown homes? Or rail against starter homes, because of who might live in them?

With a limited supply of remaining buildable land, and continued high demand, the housing market is out of whack, leaving many commuting long distances (great for the environment, eh?) from their jobs to find housing they can afford. The pinch is most strongly felt on senior citizens on fixed incomes, perhaps looking to downsize, as well as on our kids just starting out on their own.

That brings us to "who" affordable housing might be for. Take any room full of current Yorktowners, including long-time residents, and ask them where they are from. In the answers you will hear some "natives," but mostly you will hear the Bronx, Manhattan, Yonkers, etc. Why isn't there a call to incorporate in Yorktown's zoning code a requirement that we restrict, or give preference to, only current Yorktown residents for sale or rental of existing or new housing?

Given that affordable housing is a relatively scarce commodity, I understand the desire to give preference to those already in our community. However, just as fair housing laws prohibit realtors from "steering" people toward or away from certain communities in a discriminatory manner, it's easy for a municipality to run afoul of those laws and be sued if it develops policies that in practice may exclude some people.

So, in summary, yes - smaller homes with deed restrictions that limit price will pay lower taxes than larger homes with no restrictions. But remember, the proposed set aside law only applies to new developments, which are adding to our tax base. We are not adding a second police station, or a second town hall, when a new development is built, so the town is receiving additional tax revenue, while much of the fixed costs in the town budget are not impacted. That's a net benefit to current taxpayers in Yorktown, even if 10% of the new development is affordable.

And who are ^athose people" we are so afraid of who might be selected by a fair and open lottery system? If we look in the mirror as a community, they are us.

Time for Lowey, Congress to Support Green New Deal

By Zachary Fisch

I write to express my continued disappointment at Rep. Nita Lowey for her failure to take the bold and urgent steps needed to combat the growing threat of climate change to our region.

Lowey failed to support the call for a Green New Deal subcommittee that would have had actual power to draft legislation to address climate change. She only signed on to a non-binding resolution indicating general support for the Green New Deal after activists spent months flooding her office with calls and visits, and the day after this paper published a previous version of this commentary online where I called on her to support the resolution, which she originally declined to cosponsor. This is not leadership, and it is not enough.

Climate change is an existential threat to our civilization right now. Disasters like Superstorm Sandy, which affected thousands of families in Westchester including my own, will become common. The Lower Hudson Valley is 50 percent more likely to have a 100-year flood in the 2020s, and up to 190 percent more likely to have one in the 2050s. Large parts of our infrastructure, including Amtrak and Metro-North, will be underwater within our lifetimes.

We don't have much time to stave off catastrophe. A recent U.N. report found that we need to reduce emissions by 45 percent in the next 12 years to keep the rise in global temperatures to a manageable level.

A Green New Deal would do just that. It would put people to work to decarbonize our economy and protect our homes and infrastructure. Not only could it literally save the planet, it would make our communities more livable and help us prepare to rescue the economy during the next recession. All the while, it would help lessen our county's staggering income inequality, among the worst in the nation.

We need policies that match the scale of this impending crisis. A select committee on a Green New Deal would not have enacted those policies; it simply would have studied the problem and recommended legislation for Congress to pass in 2020. It was a reasonable approach backed by people across the political spectrum: 81 percent of voters approved of the committee, including 64 percent of Republicans. But Lowey let it die.

Rather than backing a select committee on a Green New Deal like over 40 other members of Congress, Lowey did what she has done for most of her 30-year tenure in Congress: resist bold action. She instead backed a watered-down climate change committee whose chair, Kathy Castor, signaled a willingness to kowtow to fossil fuel companies and other polluters that have an interest in kneecapping our ability to avert climate catastrophe. That committee is unlikely to produce legislation that will stop our

State Legislature Pushes Through More Gun Laws

By David Propper

Already boasting some of the strictest gun laws in the nation, the New York State Legislature passed a series of bills that made gun laws even tougher, but left a sharp divide among political parties.

With a Democratic majority in the state senate and assembly leading the way, new gun control legislation passed easily last week as Albany continues to move forward with a progressive agenda promised by Gov. Andrew Cuomo during his State of State address last month.

The legislation included the "red flag" bill that allows law enforcement, school staff and family members to request a judge stop a person they believe is a threat to themselves or others from temporarily owning or buying a gun until a hearing is held.

Other measures banned teachers from carrying a firearm on school grounds, extended the waiting period for someone to purchase a gun if they don't pass an instant background check and banned bump stocks being sold or manufactured, which can increase the rate of fire in a semi-automatic weapon.

"We take a big step forward today," Cuomo said during a gun safety forum last week. "No one wants to take guns from legal gun owners who are mentally healthy. We don't want people who are mentally ill or are past felons to have gun. That's all this is."

This is the second time during Cuomo's tenure in office that sweeping reforms aimed at gun control have been passed. The first time was in 2013–the SAFE Act–in the aftermath of the Sandy Hook school shooting that killed 27 people.

Putnam state representatives were split over the new set of bills. Assemblywoman Sandy Galef and Sen. Peter Harckham, Democrats, voted in favor of the complete package of bills while Assemblyman Kevin Byrne and

Sen. Sue Serino, Republicans, did not.

The most controversial piece of the package was the "red flag" bill.

Serino, who lost a brother to suicide, said while she understands the intent behind the "red flag" law, the bill is too broad and fails to get to the heart of the issue when it comes to mental health and gun violence. She added the Democratic majority played politics and rushed the legislation through without getting input from appropriate stakeholders.

"I could not in good conscious support legislation that allows ordinary citizens, with no mental health training or background, to single out others as harmful while then failing to provide any mental health services, support, or legal assistance to the accused," Serino said in a statement. "That's a recipe for

Peter Harckham

She pushed for legislation that would've put more mental health professionals in schools, but it was rejected by leadership within the state legislature.

Byrne voted against the "red flag" law because of numerous flaws, including opportunities for exploitation and abuse, lack of timely due process and that it provides no additional attention, services, or supervision for those individuals flagged for mental health help. Once a person is flagged as a possible danger, no action is required after confiscation until a hearing is held to determine whether or not that person should have their gun back, Byrne said.

"If these people are such a danger, we should not be leaving them in society where they may have access to alternative methods to harm themselves or others; they should receive an immediate mental health evaluation and the state should be providing assistance and support," Byrne said in a statement. "Without this added attention, there is a very legitimate concern that this law could unintentionally escalate a situation and further endanger public safety."

Byrne did vote to ban bump stocks, a piece of legislation he has consistently supported. Byrne said he has also advocated for more mental health services and measures to better protect schools, but assembly leadership has not put the legislation forward.

Supporting the set of gun laws, Sen. Peter Harckham said the "red flag" bill was a "common sense gun safety" measure. He added that there needs to be a "high level of proof" that could result in a firearm being taken away

County Legislator Nancy Montgomery, a Democrat, said she was heartened that state lawmakers have responded to the pleas from responsible gun owners and gun safety advocates. Families, mental health providers, medical professionals and law enforcement have the tools they need to identify people that might hurt themselves or others, she said.

"That will enable us all to proactively assist those who need intervention, and keep our communities safe. At the same time, we have protected the Second Amendment rights of law abiding gun owners," Montgomery, a Philipstown resident, said in an email. "I hope that New York State's achievement will be a model for similar legislation across the country."

Patterson resident Andrew Falk, a former state assembly candidate and current Working Families Party state committee member, said not taking action to curtail gun violence would be "immoral."

"We need to stop sacrificing our children on the alter of the Second Amendment," Falk said in an email. "To have a mechanism for reporting a person for additional scrutiny before a tragedy occurs is a safeguard that should be welcomed by everyone and one of the reasons many of us have worked so hard to make a Democratic State Senate a reality."

But Putnam GOP committee chairman

Tony Scannapieco said now "some jerk in the street" can call authorities and assert a person shouldn't have a firearm because he is mentally unwell. He called the legislation "insane."

"Every time there's a mass shooting, they're always complaining we need to talk about reforms," Scannapieco said. "When a guy takes a truck and drives down a park in Manhattan and kills a bunch of people, they don't say anything about trucks."

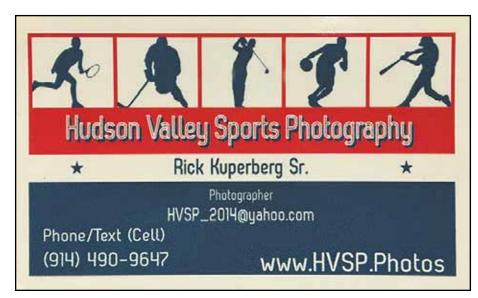

The Putnam County Firearm Owners Association (PCFOA) slammed the new set of gun laws rolled out and accused Cuomo of pandering for political reasons all while depriving residents in the state from their right to bear arms. The PCFOA said the state assembly and senate attacked several different amendments in the Constitution and the new legislation "has no basis in law and no basis in fact."

"And such actions have been undertaken with the primary goal of promoting an anti-American political agenda," the PCFOA stated. "The members of PCFOA oppose the enactment of any legislation that infringes upon any Rights especially the Right of the People to keep and bear arms and considers such laws to be politically motivated, unconstitutional and beyond lawful Legislative Authority."

Peekskill resident Joan King said recently there were two reasons she named her Peekskill business Little Kings and Queens Daycare in Peekskill: King is her last name and she added queens to the name of the business because she wanted another name to compliment kings.

The business, which has four locations in Peekskill, describes itself as being places "where little hands do big things."

"The business is just growing," King said. "It started as a home day care. We've been in Peekskill for 25 years."

King recalled that she began her business following the death of her mother Carolyn Cheeks, who had been providing care for her then three-yearold daughter.

The 50 Dayton Lane location is decorated with a festive Valentine's Day look. "I wanted to give it a homelike feeling because I've been into family daycare for 25 years," King said. "Family daycare is really like a home-based daycare. So, when you walk into the building, I wanted to give that same effect, the home feeling. I wanted the kids to feel like they're at home where they can enjoy themselves. Without decorating and doing what I was doing I felt like when I walked in here it felt like a prison or a school."

Little Kings and Queens offers a variety of programs, including pre-kindergarten, before and after-school programs, as well as all-day programs, King said. Services are provided to children from six weeks to 12-years-old.

Educational and recreational programs are available, King said, noting children learn through play and repetition.

The pre-K program is intended for four-year-olds to prepare them for kindergarten in the Peekskill School District, King said.

The daycare centers provide pick up and drop off services for the youths they serve in the afterschool programs, King said. "After school we just make sure that when the kids come in, they get snacks. They do homework and then they get to free play with their friends," she said.

Some of the recreational activities are offered in the "fun palace," which is a room where youth get to play in various "career houses," such as a post office, construction company and grocery store, King said. The even get to dress the part of the various play businesses in the fun palace.

King said she enjoys working with youths. "I love the daycare business. I'm also in the foster care business," King said, "I love to take care of kids."

Lakeland High Senior Named Top Youth Volunteer

Jothi Ramaswamy, 17, of Mohegan Lake, a senior at Lakeland High School, was named New York's top high school youth volunteer of 2019 by The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards, a nationwide program honoring young people for outstanding acts of volunteerism.

As a State Honoree, Ramaswamy will receive $1,000, an engraved silver medallion and an all-expense-paid trip in early May to Washington, D.C., where she will join the top two honorees from each of the other states and the District of Columbia for four days of national recognition events. During the trip, 10 students will be named America's top youth volunteers of 2019 The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards, now in its 24th year, is conducted by Prudential Financial in partnership with the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

Solaris Spearheads Effort to Donate Beds to Animal Shelters

By Rick Pezzullo

Solaris Sports Club in Yorktown and its members, with an assist from The Harlem Wizards basketball team, recently joined forces for a good cause.

In a few short weeks, 100 beds for dogs and cats being housed at area animal shelters were purchased from donations from club members and proceeds raised from a clinic with the Wizards on Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

"We all said we wanted to do something for the animals," Jeannie Geyer, event coordinator at Solaris, explained about how the effort began. "We want to pick shelters that are in need of beds."

Geyer said she and others traveled to pet stores from Mohegan Lake to Yonkers to shop for the different types of beds and emphasized most stores offered generous discounts.

Each of the beds was wrapped in Valentine's Day packaging and is expected to be delivered this week.

Anyone aware of a shelter in need of beds can contact Geyer at Solaris at (914) 962-4094.

necting them to female role models who have had successful careers in science, tech, engineering and math (STEM).

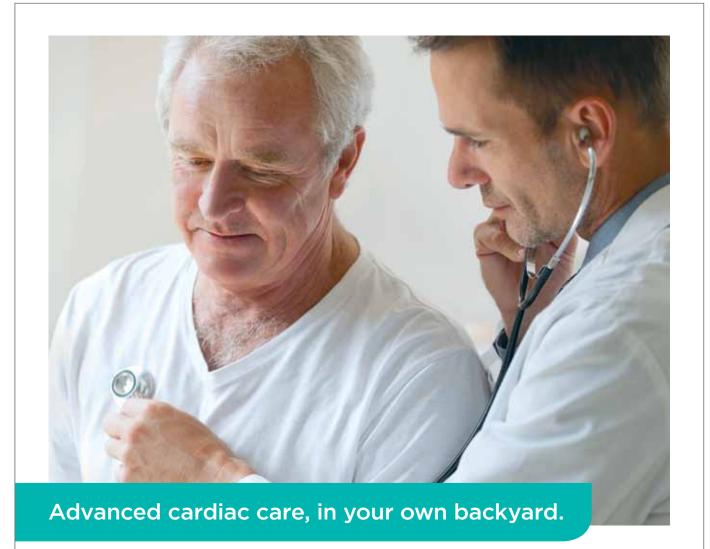

"Thirty-three boys. Zero girls. My jaw dropped," Ramaswamy said when her brother mentioned the gender ratio of his computer coding class. She knew firsthand how valuable those skills are, because her mother, an engineer, had been able to step back into her career and support the family after the death of Jothi's father. "It fired up my determination to even the playing field," she said.

Her response was to start a nonprofit organization called "ThinkSTEAM," with an "a" for to STEM subjects. "I realized that so many girls are incredibly artistic, and teaching them how to combine their own creativity with technology is the perfect way to encourage them to learn about STEM," Ramaswamy explained.

After creating a website and assembling a board of directors, she asked IBM to help her host a wearable technology workshop to show girls the intersection of technology and fashion. It that she collaborated with her school district to put on an all-day series of workshops for 75 middle school girls. So far, Ramaswamy has engaged more than 1,000 girls with Google, Facebook and Amazon, as well as with Columbia and Stanford universities. She also has conducted an annual contest inviting girls in five countries to create videos that encourage girls to pursue STEAM subjects. ThinkSTEAM now has student ambassadors organizing workshops for girls in eight states. Preparing Your Child - and Yourself - for Best Camp Experience

For parents, the most heart-racing, adrenalin-pumping moments happen when you let go and watch your child try something on his or her own.

The moment the training wheels come off, the first trip down the driveway on the skateboard, the time our children ride the school bus are more than just memories, these are critical moments that define growth and change.

For many families, the first time they send their child to camp is one of the biggest let-go, hold-your-breath and watchthem-soar moments in childhood.

In today's world of high-tech kids and families who have a constant connection to each other, it's essential to take the time to emotionally prepare for camp. It is, of course, important to prepare the first-time camper, but families need to make sure that Mom, Dad, younger siblings at home - virtually everyone - is ready to adjust to camp life.

The American Camp Association® (ACA) provides these tips to help ease first-time families into the camp experi-

Parents. As parents, it is important to focus on the positive aspects of camp. Remember that separation is natural, necessary and inevitable. What better place to have that first experience than in a caring and nurturing environment designed specifically for children?

Parents can also focus on the amazing benefits of camp - an experiential education like no other - teaching valuable 21st century survival skills like leadership, teamwork, problem-solving and interpersonal communication.

Siblings. Family therapist Bob Ditter, one of the nation's leading experts on camp, cautions it is likely that the child left at home will experience separation anxiety and truly miss his or her sibling. To help them prepare, be sure to talk about that. Before the eldest child leaves for camp, take a picture of your children together that the sibling can keep in their room or carry around. Remind your children about the communication they can have with each other through letters and postcards.

Other family members. Be sure that everyone is aware of the upcoming experience. Family members should know how to contact the camper, if they are interested, through letters and care packages. Make sure to be aware of any communication policies the camp may have, such as no phone calls or restrictions on what can be sent in a care package.

In addition, an increasing number of camps are using websites to display photos or video during the camp session. According to ACA's 2011 Emerging Issues Survey, 75 percent of responding camps indicate that they post photos or videos to a website for families to view. Forty-five percent indicate that they post information, photos and videos to social media outlets like Facebook. Families should be sure to ask camp directors about these options.

Camp is an equal opportunity lifechanger. By sending a child to camp,

Biographical Films about Artists

By Evelyn J. Mocbeichel

While we enjoy a whole gamut of film topics, the most informative and interesting seem to be either documentaries or biographical movies about famous people. Whether it is a political or historical figure, celebrities, inventors or great artists, these films often depict a side of the person that is little known besides their contributions that made them famous. Over the years we have seen many movies that centered on artists and their works. Many of these films are available at the library, on television cable services or the older ones are frequently shown on regular channels. In no particular order, here are some that our family has enjoyed over the years.

Maudie was made in 2016 and starred Sally Hawkins (star of The Shape of Water) and Ethan Hawke. It was a co-production of Ireland and Canada and is about the life of folk artist Maud Lewis, who painted in Nova Scotia. Maud struggles with arthritis, had a sorrowful childhood and lonesome life. After her parents die her older brother leaves his grown sister Maudie with an elderly aunt that is kind, yet treats her like a child. One day Maudie answers a help wanted notice hung in the local general store. She becomes a housekeeper for a somewhat demanding, mean fish monger, played by Ethan Hawke in his run down, dilapidated cottage. Watching their turbulent relationship evolve and Maudie gain fame through her art work is the basis for the plot of this moving true story.

Girl with the Pearl Earring is the story of the young woman that posed for Dutch Golden Age painter Johannes Vermeer's famous oil painting of the same name. The painting is a side profile of a girl wearing a headscarf and pearl earring. The young peasant girl was working in Vermeer's house as a maid and became his talented assistant and the model for one of his most famous works. The film starred the beautiful Scarlett Johansson, Colin Firth and Tom Wilkinson and was nominated for three Oscars.

Big Eyes is the name of the film about the artist that does the paintings where all the children have huge, almost cartoonish eyes. Produced in 2014 the film is a drama about painter Margaret Keane and her phenomenal success back in the 1950's. The drama surrounding this film is about the legal problems she had in the 1960's when her deceitful and conniving second husband claimed he did the paintings and not his wife. She had let him control her finances, marketing and publicity and was unaware of what his intentions were regarding stealing her fame and fortune. This film stars Amy Adams, Christoph Waltz and Danny Huston

Tim's Vermeer is a film we saw at the 2013 Hampton International Film Festival (HIFF) out on Long Island. It was nominated in 2014 for the BAFTA (British Academy of Film and Television Arts) award for best documentary. The film is about inventor Tim Jenison who seeks to understand the painting technique used by Dutch Master Johannes Vermeer and tries to copy one of his paintings, stroke by stroke, coming up with an absolutely amazing reproduction showing Jenison's astounding talents. "For reasons he cannot quite explain, Mr. Jenison hit upon a technological sleight of hand, using optical gadgetry that has been available for centuries, that he believed could have aided the work of the old master painters such as Vermeer, a 17th-century Dutchman with a startling talent for photorealistic work. Finding no literature that he felt proved or disproved his thesis, Mr. Jenison determined he had only one course of action and that was to use his discoveries to recreate a Vermeer work, despite his lack of painting experience."

Written by Penn Jillette, Teller (Pen and Teller), directed by Teller the film stars Tim Jenison, Penn Jillette and Martin Mull. This was a fascinating documentary and one of the best films we saw that year at the festival.

Others

The list continues with films that feature great artists as the subject. Too many to describe here you might want to research them on your own. Going back in time there is Lust for Life the 1956 film starring Kirk Douglas as the brilliant yet troubled artist Vincent van Gogh. It was directed by Vincente Minnelli and George Cukor. Anthony Quinn, James Donald and Pamela Brown also starred in the film. The film garnered three Academy Award nominations and a Best Actor in a Supporting Role Oscar for Anthony Quinn, who has a minor role as fellow artist Paul Gaugin. Following that release ten years later was The Agony and the Ecstasy the 1965 film starring, Charlton Heston, Rex Harrison, Diane Cilento and Harry Andrews is about the life of Michelangelo as the Renaissance artist that painted the Sistine Chapel's ceiling. The film is based on the novel of the same name by Irving Stone and focuses on the contentious relationship between Michelangelo and Pope Julius II, played by Harrison.

FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT RETURNS TO THE COUNTY CENTER

Family. We are all part of a family and all the ups and downs that come with it. The Royal Hanenford Circus Family has ups and downs that are much different from yours and mine. The Hanneford Family performs on the High Wire as Aerialists, on Horseback, on the Trampoline, and as Acrobats and High Flyers!

Compare your daily grind of 9 – 5 with weekends off to the Circus grind- 2 – 3 days on the road, a day or two of set up and rehearsal, 3 days of three Shows a day. Not only traveling and performing but also setting up, breaking down, feeding and caring for the animals etc. week after week, month after month for nine months of the year.

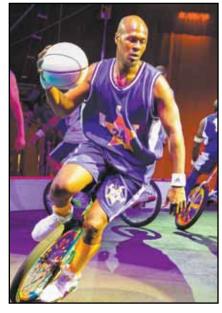

Yes, we often feel that our life is a Circus, but for the Hannefords, Life truly is a Circus and they wouldn't have it any other way.

The Royal Hanneford family's sole purpose is to entertain – something that the Hannefords' have been doing since 1690 in England.

And President's Day Weekend, The Royal Hanneford Circus will bring their traditional 3 ring Circus to the Westchester County Center for 9 performances! Showtimes are 10 - 2 - 6 each day!

Ticket cost $35 (premium Seats) and $27 (Reserved Seats) and are available at The Westchester County Center Box Office, also available at Ticketmaster/ticketmaster.com (additional fees apply at Ticketmaster). Tickets for groups of 20 or more are $22 each for any 10AM or 6PM Performance.

Producing this year's Circus is Nellie Hanneford a 7th generation Hanneford.

Performing in this year's Circus are 8th and 9th generation Hannefords- Nellie's children and grandchild.

It's a Family Show. So, bring your family and enjoy The Royal Hanneford Circus.

The Front Door is Often the Key to a House

The front door can say a lot about a house, either reflecting the condition of the space within or contradicting it.

A beautiful, sturdy door with quality hardware greets the visitor with a confident hello; a weathered door, perhaps out of alignment with old or poorly functioning hardware, conveys something quite different about the house, something unappealing.

Just as a person can be judged within the first few seconds, a house is judged in great part by the condition, functionality and look of its front door. When showing properties to prospective buyers, I'm always surprised to find an older home that has been upgraded, but the owners haven't paid proper attention to the front door, especially its hardware.

If the door needs painting or is warped and if the hardware is tarnished and in poor working order, a pall can be cast over the entire house. Perhaps some homeowners are unaware of a deteriorating front door. Many people enter a side entrance or into the mud room or kitchen. However, visitors normally come only to the front door.

While the functional purposes of a front door are to withstand the elements, help toward energy efficiency and provide protection, visitors view it as an aesthetic statement, even a psychological one. If the door is attractive and in good shape, that perception extends to the entire household – and to its owner as well.

Look at your front door and determine whether it needs simply sprucing up or a total replacement. Some door problems can be repaired and others cannot. If the door is improperly hung, has trouble closing or latching, is slightly warped or is just sticking, these problems may be worth fixing. But if it has rot or is outrageously outdated in style, consider replacement options.

Whether you use a contractor or a handyman, get different opinions about which kind of new door to choose. Some would suggest that the top-quality material is still wood. Steel or alu-

The feature I like best about a good fiberglass door is that the manufacturers have managed to develop an incredibly realistic grain that matches real wood. Also, the number of door styles are plentiful with beveled glass options available. Fiberglass can be stained or painted and fancy hardware can be applied to them, just as you would a wood door.

Door hardware, which in aesthetic terms, can make a door "pop." But if it's worn, that pop can be a dull thud.

The polished look is one factor, but a lock and handle's functionality are the primary things to consider.

Basically, locksets fall into two different categories, mortise or cylindrical. While I don't fully understand the difference in mechanical workings, my trusted locksmith tells me that mortise locksets, which are installed into a rectangular dugout in the door, offer the ultimate in security, design and ruggedness.

The choice of locksets and handles can be a daunting experience. When I went hunting for new hardware, I was overwhelmed by the selection. I took a picture of the set I thought the most attractive and showed it to my locksmith. I asked him to supply the best choice for my particular door. Better to leave such things to the experts, unless you're a great do-it-yourselfer, which I am not.

Highly polished solid brass knobs, backplates, thumblatches are desirable but, fair warning, they can be quite expensive. When it comes to selecting a color for the front door, it is a situation of relating to, or contrasting with, one of the other tones found in the house or the landscape that surrounds it. Many people today choose a deep green or red (which has many hues such as black cherry and adobe) to have their front doors stand out. There is a bigger trend now toward selecting yellow, which can be toned down with a covering glaze.

One cardinal rule about color: a front door should never be stark white. The theory is that the door should relate to the land-scape in some way and pure white is rarely found in nature. If your preference leans toward white, it should have a hue of another color, such as pink or yellow. The large casing around the door should be a different color than the door itself. The casing should be treated like a trim, matching windows and other trim.

For both curb appeal and resale value, spruce up the front door, and in a sense, you have a new home.

painter Jackson Pollock and features Ed Harris, Marcia Gay Haden and Jennifer Connelly. Harden won the Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, playing Lee Krasner, Pollock's wife. Jackson Pollock was an East End resident having moved to East Hampton in 1945 and spent the rest of his life there.

Women Painters

There are many talented women artists, but only a few had their life stories captured on film to a commercial success. Frida, starring Salma Hayek as the lead, with Alfred Molina and Geoffrey families are truly giving a gift that lasts a lifetime. Taking steps to mentally prepare for camp, families not only keep from getting "kid-sick" for their camper, but they can stay positive about the camp experience, which goes a long way toward helping first-time campers adjust to life at camp.

Rush is a biography of Frida Kahlo who suffered from pain after a crippling injury and "and her tempestuous marriage to her husband, Diego Rivera", also a painter. The film follows the professional and private life of this surrealist Mexican painter. Hayek was nominated in 2002 for an Academy Award for her role as Frida.

Camille Claudel is a French film about the life of 19th century sculptor, Camille Claudel. The 1988 biographical film starred Isabelle Adjani, Gerard Depardieu and Madeleine Robison. Camille was the sister of writer Paul Claudel and in the film her enthusiasm impresses already-famous sculptor Auguste Rodin and he hires her as an assistant. But soon Camille begins to sculpt for herself and for Rodin. She also becomes his mistress. But after a while, she would like to get out of his shadow and there the conflict arises.

With the winter months now here, it's the perfect time to curl up to a good movie and perhaps after it, be inspired to read one of the books about the artist the film was based upon.

And just like taking off the training wheels, the moment families see their camper radiating confidence and joy they will feel that burst of pride and gratitude that they provided their child this experience.

member Knapp and his trademark blue eyes. So many blue light bulbs were purchased that stores near Putnam Valley were running out of the product. The suggestion was made by a classmate of his, Elayna Kurtenbach.

"I was so proud of this community, everybody came together for this family," Fontanez said. "(The Knapp family) wasn't alone. They had hundreds, thousands of people right beside them."

The school system also took a proactive role in comforting students affected by the accident and Knapp's subsequent death. On February 2, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Fran Wills wrote in a post to the community that teachers and counselors would be ready to support students in classes when they returned to school the Monday after the accident and the high school was open Sunday afternoon immediately following the accident with faculty on hand.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with his family and friends," Wills wrote.

Supervisor Sam Oliverio said the death of Knapp is a loss that can never be replaced. One positive from this horrific tragedy, Oliverio said, is the overwhelming support shown to the Knapp family the past couple weeks.

Oliverio was an assistant principal at Putnam Valley High School for half of a school year when Knapp was a freshman before he took on the role as supervisor. Even though their paths only crossed for a short time, Oliverio said he knew of Knapp because he had a reputation of being a very good athlete.

Oliverio stressed he hopes this accident teaches young people to make wise decisions as they grow up to avoid the heartbreak the Putnam Valley community has endured.

"It's tough," Oliverio said.

You Heard It

Through the

Exploring the Perception vs. Reality of Sweet and Dry Wines

I know what wine you're drinking.

Oh, I hear you trying to convince me of a particular varietal or style you're drinking, but I know what you're buying – and enjoying.

And I have the facts and stats to prove

Last week, I reviewed a report on the wine drinking habits of Americans. I decided to compare the data with anecdotal inputs. And I was surprised at the results. Well, maybe not. Nevertheless, I now know what you are drinking.

I encounter many wine consumers who, when asked their favorite style of wine, will emphatically reply "I only drink dry wine."

Whether they prefer white or red, I often receive a response such as "I don't like sweet wines, the drier the wine the better."

Here are the facts I've culled, based on an independent poll of consumer preferences. (The format offered specific choices; respondents were requested to check all that apply.)

Semi-sweet: 45 percent Smooth: 44 percent Fruity: 40 percent Sweet: 38 percent Dry: 36 percent Savory (less fruit): 18 percent Tannic: 6 percent

Clearly, a dry style is not the dominant preference of consumers. My conclusion? American wine consumers have a sweeter tooth than I believed.

It has been extensively reported that Americans consume alarming amounts of sugar. We've all read of the epidemic of obesity and diabetes in the United States. Soft drinks, chocolate, other candies and breakfast cereals continue to be consumed at alarming rates, albeit abating

Why should our preference for wines be different?

The generally accepted definition of sweet wine is one with residual sugar of 30 grams per liter. This includes Sauternes and Ice Wine. Wines with nine grams or less are generally considered to be dry, that is, all of the sugars in the fermented grapes have been converted to alcohol. That leaves a significant range for semisweet wines.

I define sweet-style as fruit forward with a hint (or more) of sugar, either in the mouth or in the finish, and low in acidity. (The higher the acidity the lower the perception of sweetness.)

I tend to write about drier styles and varietals of wines. I've expounded on dry white wines I prefer, from Sauvignon Blanc to Burgundian Chablis to Brut Champagne to bone-dry Riesling. I've espoused the virtues of drinking dry red wines such as Chianti Classico, red Burgundy, Aglianico and Sagrantino.

I rarely write about sweet-style wines. Past columns have fleetingly touched on sweet Riesling, Gewürztraminer, Moscato, Prosecco, even White Zinfandel, each with equal disdain. I have treated certain reds with similar snootiness, from the current rage of fruity red blends to fruitforward Merlot.

Perhaps I should change my focus.

The wine companies that dominate the American wine market understand the American consumer better than I. Americans participating in their focus groups have let down their guard, expressing their preference for sweeter-style wines. These elite 2 percent of wine companies account for more than 80 percent of wine sold in the United States; their marketing focus is spot-on.

On a smaller scale, a number of wineries with tasting rooms typically produce a sweet white and/or red wine, to meet consumer demand. And sales justify these decisions. This is especially so in New York State regions. Finger Lakes wineries cater to consumer demand with multiple offerings of Rieslings and Gewürztraminers. Some consider these to be the finest in the country. Even I prefer several to pair with Asian dishes.

The Italians have also capitalized on the American sweet tooth. Prosecco, a typically sweet style of sparkling wine, has enjoyed skyrocketing sales in the last 10 years. Several producers supplement their wines with doses of sugar to meet the American preference. For a portion of Americans, Prosecco is the sparkling version of White Zinfandel.

Everyone's palate is different. My sensory receptors may conclude a particular wine is a dry style, while you may consider it a sweeter style. My palate's physiology may detect dryness before sweetness in a wine.

Drink as your palate dictates, not as a wine writer suggests.

I was glad to see Lowey co-sponsor the resolution for a Green New Deal last Friday. Her statement offering support for this vital effort is important, and we thank her for it. But if it is not followed up with real leadership and action, it will mean nothing in the end.

I challenge Lowey to use her power as chair of the Appropriations Committee to take the concrete steps needed to protect Westchester and Rockland – and the planet. Push to replace Indian Point with renewable energy, not fossil fuels like coal or natural gas. Support debt-free college to enable young people to secure their futures in fields critical to decarbonization, such as solar engineering and urban planning, without taking on debilitating student debt. Provide for jobs programs that pay a good wage to workers who help retrofit our buildings to the highest energy efficiency standards.

Climate change is not happening in 10 years. It's happening now. It's time for Lowey to realize that and act accordingly. We do not have time to wait. If we continue to allow her to play it safe, we will all pay the price for the rest of our lives

Zachary Fisch is a Tarrytown resident and a third-year student at Harvard Law School.

Editor's Note: Lowey's office contacted Examiner Media after the original version of this article was published online and stated that the congresswoman supported the resolution in principle prior to signing on as a cosponsor. She was never an opponent of the resolution, a Lowey spokesman said. The spokesman also said the column did not lead to the congresswoman's decision to join as a cosponsor.
