New Development Considerations Along the N. Broadway Corridor

By Pat Casey

During the May 15 meeting of the White Plains Planning Board several projects of note were discussed.

Of particular interest, William Null with the White Plains-based law firm Cuddy and Feder, presented the alternative option for development of the Good Counsel Complex site at 52 North Broadway as presented in the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) for a proposed Zoning Ordinance change now before the White Plains Common Council.

The new owner and developer of the property is WP Development NB, LLC.

With the White Plains Historic Preservation Commission having recently designated most of the property in question with landmark status, the viability of several of the buildings on the site has come into question.

Null noted that the developer's proposal would keep the Chapel of the Divine

The orange-colored building is the Chapel of the Divine Compassion, the long yellow building is the proposed portion of the convent to be maintained, and the other yellow structure is the proposed new location for the Mapleton House. Broadway) would be moved to another location on the site and a portion of the existing convent would be preserved; turned into a museum dedicated to the historic significance of the property and the story of the Sisters of the Divine Compassion and their founders who are buried in a crypt within the chapel on the site.

Null explained that the convent building, because of its design with small rooms (referred to as cells) for the nuns living there, and common bathrooms, could not be rehabilitated and turned into new and marketable residential units.

The large lawn and landscaping along North Broadway (2.7 acres of open green space) with the chapel as a focal point was considered by the developer to be important to the community and

White Plains School District Voters Pass $218.6 Million Budget

By Pat Casey

The White Plains CSD 2018-2019 Budget ($218.6 million) was passed May 15 with an official vote count of 807 Yes and 149 No.

The budget increase is 2.08 percent over last year and the tax rate increase is 2.88 percent over the same period.

The question regarding the use of Capital Reserve ($10 million) for repairs at various schools passed with a vote count of 846 Yes and 99 No.

This positive vote authorizes the Board of Education to expend an amount not to exceed $10 million from its Capital Reserve Fund to be used for school improvement projects. Requested projects include full roof replacements for Church Street School, George Washington School, Rochambeau School, High School Pool and Field House; cafeteria air conditioning for Mamaroneck Avenue School, Highlands Middle School and Rochambeau School; partial roof replacement for Mamaroneck Avenue School; intercom/public address system for Church Street School, George Washington School, Ridgeway School and Rochambeau School; domestic water backflow preventer for Education House and George Washington School; stage lighting improvements at Highlands Middle School; electric replacement - Phase 2 at Rochambeau School; new natural gas line to boilers, ceiling, lighting replacement for Church Street School; renovation of student restrooms in Kindergarten wing at Ridgeway School; new water meters and backflow devices at George Washington Elementary School and Education House.

The question to provide Transportation for students at White Plains High School who live one mile from the school also passed with a vote count of 831 Yes and 123 No.

This vote authorizes the Board of Education to provide transportation for students in grades 9-12 within the boundaries of the City of White Plains who reside more than one mile from the school, which they attend within such boundaries, for an estimated annual cost of $166,000.

James Hricay (784 votes), Cayne Letizia (801 votes) and Rose Lovitch (783 votes) were reelected to the Board of Education, each to serve a three-year term, ending June 30, 2021.

"It takes an engaged and committed community to create and promote a high quality district budget. We are very thankful to all that took the time to attend meetings; distribute information; participate in focus group meetings; and organize community gatherings. It is because of the support of our community, that we are able to move forward with support for our outstanding student programming! We are thrilled and we are grateful," said School Superintendent Joseph Ricca.

therefore the new proposal attempts to locate much of the development behind the chapel where it is less visible to the public. The open green space would be available for public use.

Null said that even though the property looks flat when viewed from N. Broadway, there is significant grading that works to the advantage of taller building design at the rear of the property.

The area of the site containing the landfill is not part of the landmark area. That area is where much of the residential development would be built. Null said the landfill is construction debris and not hazardous or toxic waste and the developer is working with the NY DEC to remediate the problem.

Because the Planning Board members had only just received information about the alternative proposal, discussion was adjourned to the June meeting.

The proposed changes include an enhanced turning radius at the drop-off and pick-up location off of Main Street with a safer crosswalk to Main Street from the parking garage.

Enhancements to the dog walk area, an outdoor stage, changed water element (the fountains will be removed), retail kiosks and added seating with tables are planned.

The City Center owner would like to have the renovations completed by spring 2019.

Latimer Seeks Public Input on County Airport's Future

By Martin Wilbur

County Executive George Latimer last week unveiled a schedule to gather public feedback for a supplemental Master Plan regarding the future of Westchester County Airport that will be submitted to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Latimer announced that he will chair at least three public hearings in June that will address the key issues regarding the airport – the Master Plan, including an environmental review, its governance and operations. The county is under a tight timetable to file the plan by the July 15 deadline set by the FAA to avoid losing nearly $1.4 million in federal grant money it had received in 2012 to pay for the Master Plan.

He has asked the Board of Legislators to return with a consensus on how to proceed by October so he can consider whatever expenses may be needed in time for the 2019 budget. Until that time, no decisions will be made regarding the airport.

"We are prepared to do what is necessary to do, what we think is the best public policy with public input on the airport," Latimer said.

The public hearing on the Master Plan will take place on June 6 at Rye Brook Village Hall, followed by the hearing on the airport's governance on June 11 at Hergenhan Recreation Center in

County Executive George Latimer announced last week that three public hearings have been scheduled for next month regarding Westchester County Airport.

Armonk. The third hearing on operations is scheduled for June 25 at the West Harrison Senior Center. All hearings begin at 7 p.m.

Latimer has been critical of former county executive Rob Astorino for failing to include public feedback on the completed portion of the Master Plan and for his attempt a couple of years ago to bring in Oak Tree Capital, a private entity, to operate the airport as part of balancing the county's budget.

Late last year, Astorino reached a long-term deal with Macquarie Infrastructure Corp., but that agreement is in limbo pending on what direction county officials decide to take.

Serious concerns have surfaced over potential privatization and expansion, particularly in communities surrounding the airport. In addition, there have been increasing complaints from some residents in neighboring communities about a sharp rise in noise from aircraft landing at the facility.

The supplemental plan will accompany the Master Plan that was developed by the Astorino Administration but any information will supersede what has already been completed, Latimer said.

"On none of these things do I presume what the final product is supposed to be," Latimer said. "I presume the final product will be a combination of citizen input, legislative discussion, executive branch review, professionals that we have that run the airport and then ultimately the public policy that will be set by the county executive and by the county Board of Legislators as a group."

"The is what I think has been missing when dealing with the airport issues," he added.

Following Latimer's press conference, Macquarie put out a statement regarding last week's development.

"Macquarie Infrastructure Corporation continues to believe in the merits of a revised and sustainable management approach to Westchester County Airport," the statement read. "We respect the County Executive's decision to thoroughly engage the public in a robust and open discussion of this valuable component of Westchester's infrastructure, and we stand ready to participate in the discussion as he and his team deem appropriate."

Jonathan Wang, chairman of Citizens for a Responsible County Airport, who attended Latimer's May 16 press conference, said the strategy to include public input is a step in the right direction, although he is disappointed that the Master Plan from the Astorino Administration will be included in the submission.

"There are very serious problems with it," Wang said of the information included in it so far. "It does not represent the will of the people."

As a separate but related matter, Latimer said that the candidates for the reconfigured Airport Advisory Committee will be announced on June 1. Representatives from each one of five towns – New Castle, North Castle, Mount Pleasant, Harrison and Rye – are expected to put forth names. Last month, New Castle officials announced that Chappaqua resident Robert Fleisher has been named as that town's choice for the committee.

Two White Plains HS Seniors to Receive Jandon Scholarships

The Westchester County Board of Legislators and the Jandon Foundation last week announced the recipients of scholarships in the 2018 Jandon Scholars program.

The program, now in its 19th year, awards $12,000 over four years to Westchester public high school seniors who meet certain academic requirements and financial eligibility guidelines, to help them complete their college educations.

This year's 15 scholarship recipients

2018 Jandon Scholars with members of the Cecil Family and the Westchester County Board of Legislators.

were celebrated at a ceremony at the Rotunda of the Board's Legislative chambers Wednesday afternoon.

White Plains High School Seniors Jennifer Ortega-Salazar (attending Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute) and Delyne Petion (attending SUNY Oswego) were among this year's winners.

"You all have a lot to offer," said Alec Cecil, son of Jane and Donald Cecil of Harrison who founded the program in 1999. "We want you to get through school and go on to successful careers and have families and to contribute to your communities and hopefully to the world. You are exceptional young people."

At the ceremony, Board Chair Ben Boykin urged the students to remember the moment as a turning point in their lives. "This is a moment in your life and I want you always to remember this. 20, 30, 40 years from now, remember this moment because this is putting you on the path to success," Boykin said.

The Jandon Foundation is a private foundation created by Jane and Donald Cecil of Harrison, New York. The Cecils funded the Mount Vernon "I Have a Dream" program in 1987 and began funding the Neuberger Museum of Arts' "Writing Through the Arts" program in 1993. The Foundation's primary philanthropic interest lies in education with particular interest in helping students from financially disadvantaged and under-educated families succeed.

The Jandon Scholars receive a total of $12,000 over their four years in college. To encourage students to complete their education, the Jandon Scholars Program offers an increase in the amount of the scholarship for each year the students remain in school. Students receive $1,500 their first year, $2,500 their second year, $3,500 their third year and $4,500 in their fourth and final year. These funds are given directly to the students to ensure the award will not diminish other financial opportunities. Students are required to submit their grades each semester in order to receive the next term's scholarship funds. In addition to the scholarship money, Jandon Scholars are treated to social events during the year for networking, advice and support.

Bad Weather May Have Affected Election Results

On Tuesday, May 15, there was a very important election around the county for School Boards and school budgets. Voters have the opportunity to vote on only one government budget – for or against the school budgets. And, there were some hotly contested elections for School Board in some districts.

During Election Day a major storm resulted in road closures, power outages and Metro North suspending service from NYC to Westchester. Many voters who intended to vote after they came home from work were unable to catch a train to Westchester in time to vote. Voter turnout was not as high as it could have been and it's possible that some of the candidates who lost their elections would have won if the weather did not cause the train service discontinuation or power outages.

What's needed? The NYS Legislature and Governor should amend the law to authorize school districts and in the case of a November election the Board of Elections to extend voting hours (which could include keeping the polls open an extra day) in the event of an unusual circumstance like the one we just experienced.

Our democracy depends on voter participation. The weather last Tuesday caused many people not to vote and that is unfortunate. With weather patterns changing this could happen again.

Greenburgh Town Supervisor

Westchester Human Rights Commission Statement on ICE “Operation Keep Safe”

The Westchester County Human Rights Commission (WCHRC) strongly opposes the overly broad net of arrests cast by Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) and Enforcement and Removal Operations (ERO) during their “Operation Keep Safe.” The results of their operations resulted in the targeting of people many of whom are productive members of our communities here in Westchester County.

ICE asserts that 180 of the 225 arrested had convictions or pending charges, some of which were serious or violent offenses. The WCHRC is concerned that “Operation Keep Safe” fails to distinguish minor traffic infractions from felony charges and in that regard is over-inclusive, cruel and inhuman, abruptly separating parents from children, husbands from wives, and pulling families apart. We find the ICE enforcement policies to be contrary to the spirit of human rights and mutual respect and implore ICE and ERO to find a more humane approach.

The WCHRC believes that ICE and ERO enforcement of federal policies in Westchester County have caused great harm to families and community networks across the County. In the words of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., “We are tied together in the single garment of destiny, caught in an inescapable net of mutuality. Whatever affects one directly affects all indirectly.”

The Westchester County Human Rights Commission seeks to promote dignity and respect by advancing justice and equality for the diverse community of Westchester County.

Westchester DA Calls on Gov’t to Pressure US Mail Service to Stem Mail Theft

Westchester County DA Anthony A. Scarpino, Jr. sent letters to Sen. Charles Schumer, Sen. Kristen Gillibrand, Congresswoman Nita Lowey and Rep. Elliot Engel last week calling on them to pressure the U.S. Postal Service to focus its attention and manpower on ending the rash of mail theft in communities throughout the county.

In recent months, police in Yonkers, Mount Vernon, White Plains, Tarrytown, Harrison, Purchase, Bronxville, New Rochelle, North Castle and other communities have been investigating incidents where curbside mailboxes were broken into either forcibly or by using a stolen key; curbside mailboxes were stolen outright; thieves used fishing techniques to take mail out of mailboxes; household rural-style mailboxes were emptied of their contents.

The Outcome: Thieves take checks or financial documents with personal identification, which can be used for identity theft and financial fraud. In some cases, checks are “washed,” meaning cleaned and erased of original information, and the “Payable to” or payable amount or both are changed. They are then cashed or fraudulently deposited. Several arrests have been made.

In some cases, residents were accused of not paying their bills on time when checks were stolen. Others have reported being victims of identity theft. Others who sent money orders, which work like cash, lost the stolen money and still owed their recipient with no way to recoup the payment.

U.S. Postal Inspectors are charged with monitoring how mail is processed and delivered. And while, inspectors continue to work in Westchester, the DA's office contends there are not enough inspectors to keep up with the criminal activity.

There are only six postal inspectors, a team leader and one analyst budgeted to oversee much of the Hudson Valley, specifically Bronx, Westchester, Rockland, Orange, Ulster, Sullivan, Dutchess and parts of Columbia, Greene and Delaware counties.

The DA's office further said: “We’ve been told they have been short-staffed, down to three inspectors for some time, and now, there are only five.”

Residents can help protect themselves by not placing checks in mailboxes and using online payment instead; writing checks with gel-style ink that cannot be erased or “washed” like ink from a standard ballpoint pen; checking credit card and bank statements daily for any unusual activity.

If you think you have been the victim of fraud, the Federal Trade Commission strongly suggests you set up a “Fraud Alert” with credit bureaus.

Gov. Cuomo: Single-Use Bag Ban Measure Without Fees Will Fail

We, the undersigned, strongly support New York State enacting a comprehensive policy to curb the use of single-use bags this legislative session.

As you are aware, our organizations have worked with municipalities throughout New York to successfully enact policies that reduce disposable bag use and encourage consumers to switch to reusable alternatives. We applaud your commitment to address plastic bag pollution on a statewide level and we want to work with your office to enact an effective, comprehensive program this year.

In February 2017, you met with several environmental groups to discuss the state preempting New York City's carryout bag reduction law. We discussed the importance of reducing plastic pollution that ultimately should be accomplished on a statewide level. We were heartened to hear you assert your commitment to take a leadership role over this issue.

However, we cannot support your legislation as it is currently written. Given our experience with Bring Your Own Bag (BYOB) policies, a plastic bag ban only will have unintended adverse consequences and therefore, needs to be accompanied by a fee on other disposable bags. Additionally, we urge that any new law retain effective local laws unless the new law is equal to or stronger than existing local laws.

Taking into account lessons learned from residents, businesses and municipalities around the state and country who have enacted Bring Your Own Bag policies, we are writing to urge you to advance a policy that bans single-use plastic bags and places a fee on all other bags (both paper and reusable bags).

An effective state policy should be modeled after municipalities that have successfully addressed this issue. A ban-fee hybrid is the most successful model of BYOB policy in the United

Westchester Women's Agenda Awards Scholarship in Memory of Alison E. Greene

In memory of the late Alison E. Greene, of White Plains, the distinguished Westchester attorney, community leader and political activist, Westchester Women's Agenda has awarded a scholarship in her honor to Valentina Loaiza, a Peekskill High School senior, who plans to attend Cornell University and follow Greene into the legal profession.

The $2900 scholarship was presented to Valentina by Greene's daughter, Carrie Teicher, at the recent In The Company of Women Luncheon given by the YWCA of White Plains and Central Westchester.

Valentina has amassed an outstanding academic record. She ranks first in a class of 279, has taken almost a dozen AP classes, is an honors student and a member of the National Honor Society as well as a member of the National Honor Societies for science, math and social studies.

Despite her heavy workload, Valentina also has found time to provide community service, working with the City University of New York's Citizenship Now project, a free legal immigration service for New York residents. Her commitment recently earned her the Prudential Presidential Service Award for dedication to community service.

According to her school's guidance counselor, Valentina "felt empowered having been able to give voice to those who have none."

On receiving her award, Valentina said: "It's an honor to have received this meaningful scholarship. I'm very grateful to have been chosen by such an amazing organization that advocates for the empowerment of women."

Valentina plans to continue benefiting her community and society by majoring in government and public policy with the goal of becoming a lawyer.

In doing so, Valentina will be entering a path blazed by Greene, who served as a Court Attorney Referee in New York State Family Court; General Counsel to the New York State Senate; Director of Operation Assist of the Children's Health Fund; Executive Director, Westchester County Human Rights Commission; Regional Director, US Department of Health and Human Services; Attorney-in-Charge, Civic Division of Legal Aid Society of Westchester and was the former Chair of the White Plains Democratic Committee. Greene was a longstanding member of the Westchester Women's Agenda.

Valentina plans to leave her own mark on her path to success.

The Westchester Women's Agenda is a feminist organization that advocates on behalf of women in Westchester County and works to ensure that the social and economic climate in the County offers women equal access to opportunity. Its membership represents over 50 individuals and organizations serving tens of thousands of residents each year.

States. Los Angeles County achieved a 94 percent reduction in single-use bags, including a 30 percent reduction in paper bag use, after implementing a ban on single-use plastic bags with a 10-cent fee on other bags, including paper. San Jose has similar legislation to Los Angeles and documented an 89 percent decrease of bags in storm drains, 60 percent fewer in creeks and 59 percent fewer in streets.

Based on these successful policies, the Town of New Castle became the first municipality in New York to enact a ban/fee hybrid, with a ban on single-use plastic bags and a 10-cent fee on paper, which went into effect in January 2017.

In contrast to these successful ordinances, Chicago simply banned plastic bags and did not place a fee on paper. As a consequence of this incomplete policy, many stores switched to slightly thicker plastic bags and labeled them as "reusable" resulting in an increase of waste and undermining efforts to curb single-use bag consumption.

In 2016, Chicago chose to switch from a ban to a seven-cent fee on disposable bags. In New York, the City of Long Beach and Suffolk County placed a fee on all bags instead of implementing a plastic bag ban and both are experiencing a dramatic reduction in disposable bag use. Meanwhile, municipalities in Westchester and Long Island chose to ban plastic bags with no fee component on other disposable bags and these communities have failed to see lasting consumer behavior change.

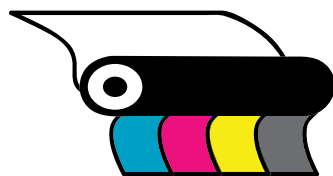

It is critical that New York moves forward with a policy that addresses both plastic and other disposable bags using the most successful policies as models.

We urge you to ban single-use plastic bags and place a fee on paper and reusable bags and we recommend that a portion of the fee collected is dedicated to state parks, environmental improvement projects and reducing potential impacts to low-and moderate-income communities.

This op-ed piece was signed by members from more than 100 environmental groups across New York State and received from Environmental Advocates of New York.

The Temple Israel Center Nursery School Studies the Arts

The Temple Israel Center (TIC) Nursery School in White Plains is a Reggio Emilia Inspired School. As you walk through the school you see a variety of art pieces made from recycled materials, from collage materials, from clay, from nature all inspired by the children's interests. Children begin experimenting with different art mediums as toddlers and continue throughout their time at TIC.

"The Reggio Emilia approach originated in Italy during the post WWII era. This early childhood philosophy requires the teachers to listen to and observe the children and teach them based on their interests. This way the children are most motivated to learn and invested in the topics. This year the 4's were fascinated by art and artists. They spent the year using a variety of materials to build, create and learn. Then, last week, they visited the Neuberger Museum as a culmination of their learning," said Carol Meyers, Assistant Director.

Both 4-year-old classes were very interested in construction and the arts. Children used wood, saws, hammers and drills to make a real Hanukiyah (a Hanukkah menorah). They used a real sewing machine to make matzah covers and repurposed a giant cardboard box throughout the year. First it was a voting booth for Election Day. Then it became a Native American longhouse, which transformed into a large home with many different rooms when they were studying about architecture. They even constructed a bathroom complete with a cardboard (and fairly realistic looking) toilet! The children loved mixing colors and exploring with paints. As children experimented with splattering paint, the teachers showed them works of Jackson Pollack. Soon each child was trying this technique and they all got to bring home their own Jackson Pollack creation. One class especially enjoyed reading the book, "Babar's Museum of Art" and decided to create an exhibit based on the paintings in the book. The book comes with a large poster of elephant masterpieces based on real paintings. Each child chose a painting to correspond with one on the poster. Each one designed a frame for the picture and gave a little description of what the painting is about.

The children's artwork was put on display in the class and then the children were able to experience their own trip to the museum where they saw a real Jackson Pollack!

In addition to Jackson Pollack's "Number 8, 1949," children saw paintings by Romare Bearden, Georgia O'Keefe, Edward Hopper and more. Each piece of art had an age appropriate activity to go with it.

The History of Chairs and How to Sit in Them

One of my first apartments was in a four-story walk-up in Brooklyn Heights owned by a cranky landlady named Diana who owned an antiques shop on the first floor. In her heyday, she had been a Ziegfeld Follies showgirl, or so she claimed, and every Saturday when I would visit her shop to seek out furniture and accessories for my apartment, I would sit with her, sometimes for hours, as she regaled me with tales of the Great White Way.

But I had to be sure to sit in the chair properly, especially if it were a straight-backed side chair.

"Sit all the way back," Diana would order, "not on the front edge!"

It seems that placing my weight on the front would damage the chair. She always gave me incredible deals on whatever I bought, and I was always sure to sit properly in her chairs.

I bought many of my antique chairs from her, most of which I still have. And, speaking of chairs, fixated as I am on the history of things, I wondered how long people have been sitting on them. When sharing that apple, Adam and Eve must have sat on a rock or fallen log, but that would assume that trees fell to the ground in paradise.

Or if you're more evolution-minded, you might consider that our ancestor, the ape, had no rump at all for comfort and probably just squatted. But once man stood upright and developed an ample derriere, there surely was a need once in a while to take a load off his feet by sitting.

My earliest memory of a reference to sitting in a chair was when I was five years old. I giggled uncontrollably over a comedic line from either Milton Berle or an old Marx brothers movie where a Margaret Dumont-type character was told to sit in order to take a load off the floor.

I also remember my mother once telling my older siblings and me that we must always sit in a chair when eating so that the food would not travel down and give us fat ankles! My brother, always a bigger wisecracker than I, responded, "But if we sit in a chair when we eat, won't we get fat rear ends?"

While it isn't certain when the first person crafted a seat with a back and sat in it, archeological evidence at Neolithic sites indicates bench-like seating areas. The earliest physical evidence we have of chairs is from the Egyptian tombs from about 2800 BC, but such comforts were normally reserved to denote higher elevation in society.

It wasn't until the Renaissance in Europe that the chair came into more general use. Since that time, the style of chairs has reflected the times in which they were crafted as much as fashion for clothing. But it was the industrial revolution when chairs could be machine-made that placed them in every household.

Almost from the beginning, chairs of plain utilitarian design sat alongside those of great style and beauty. Chair design came into its own in our culture when nurtured by our original settlers who brought style along with function from their native lands.

Today we have works of art realized in chair design, created with both ergonomic and functional considerations. But then, chairs were always functional. The original intention for wing-backed chairs, for instance, was to shield its occupants from drafts in the room, but the design has survived to this day.

Until recently I have been a traditionalist. Living in antique homes and collecting antique furnishings, I have focused on chairs ranging from early Queen Ann and later Hepplewhite to a prized barrel back chair from the 1930s that I am told was Mayor LaGuardia's favorite in his City Hall office. If I ever want to run for political office, my plan will be to have myself photographed in that chair for good luck.

But since I have moved to an ultra-modern apartment, I have purchased a dining room set with very modern, commodious chairs and a sofa that I can get lost in. These modern additions for sitting make my antique chairs stand out in a special way. But whether old or new, I can never sit in a chair on the front edge, but push myself all the way back, just as Diana demanded.

Funny, but when I went from bachelor to a married man, she stopped giving me good deals.

Living the Dream in the Wilds of California Wine Country

"The daily fog floated imperceptibly through the individual grapevines, seemingly caressing the grapes with delicate moisture. The Pacific Ocean, less than a mile away, acted as a backdrop to the fog and mountain terrain, its waves majestically crashing into the rocky beaches below."

This is how I concluded last week's column. My wife and I had just completed a whirlwind tour of the Fort Ross Vineyard and Winery in the cab of an old, rusted-out utility truck. The vista before us had been miles of unspoiled forests and coastlines. Yet in several acres immediately surrounding us were thriving vineyards planted with Pinot Noir grapes, evidence of man's (minuscule) intrusion on nature's realm.

We had come to taste the wines produced by Lester and Linda Schwartz, the pioneering couple who were the first to understand the potential of this Fort Ross-Seaview viticultural region in Northern California. And they were living their dream.

While we were waiting in the tasting room for Lester to come in from a day of toiling in the vineyard, I contemplated the serendipity that brought us to this remote outpost of California wine country and the vision and sweat that brought the couple to the very plot of land upon which we were standing.

Emigrating from South Africa in 1976, Lester and Linda were smitten by the natural beauty of the San Francisco Bay area. They ventured north seeking a parcel of land to live their dream of a rural lifestyle. They purchased 970 acres of land in 1989, and a new dream emerged. They decided to plant a vineyard and produce their own wine.

Clearing the land by hand, they experimented with plantings of dozens of grape varieties and grapevine clones for over two years, seeking the varietal that would best express their land.

They decided that the Pinot Noir grape was best suited to their terroir. The annual rainfall was substantial, the growing season was long and the sunshine was abundant, all factors under which Pinot Noir flourishes. They cleared additional parcels by hand, ultimately planting 50 acres. Each day they felt a growing sense of accomplishment. In 2001, Lester and Linda released their first wine, followed by additional plantings and bottlings. Each day they were living their dream.

Fast forward to our conversation and wine tasting session in the tasting room. Before us were the bounty of their land: eight different Pinot Noirs, three Chardonnays, a Pinotage (a grape native to South Africa), a sparkling wine and a late harvest Chardonnay dessert wine.

As we tasted through a representative selection of these wines, it was clear that Lester is passionate about winemaking. He spoke with a sense of wonder and excitement as he regaled us with his tales of successes and failures in the vineyard, the national accolades his wines have received and the growing membership in his wine club. (Yes, we are now members and have received – and enjoyed – our first shipment.)

Living one's dream is the ultimate achievement and self-gratification in life. But what of the fruits of one's labor? Under the best of circumstances, producing fine wines can be elusive and frustrating.

Sipping the 2013 Stagecoach Road single vineyard Pinot Noir with Lester was enthralling. My wife and I had walked through this vineyard minutes before, and now we were reliving that terroir in a glass of wine. The bouquet of forest aromas was quite evident, wafting through our olfactory senses; the rich black fruit flavors exploded in our mouths. The wine was well balanced between fruit and acidity, the finish silky with a soft tannic mouthfeel.

The 2013 Mother of Pearl Chardonnay was redolent of green apples and stone fruit. The bright minerality and acidity instantly infused our nostrils with the smell and feel of the Pacific Ocean below us.

To live in a natural paradise and to craft wines that express the beauty and power of nature is a dream many have. To live that dream every day, as Lester and Linda Schwartz have for more than two decades, is nirvana.

Lady Tigers Young Stars Support Upperclassmen for First Round Win But Lose to # 2 Yorktown in Quartetfinals to End Season

By Albert Coqueran

On Friday, May 18, eighth-grade phenome Ella Utschig was back on the mound with vim and vigor, knowing her team needed her to pitch against Scarsdale High School in the First Round of the Section 1 AA Playoffs.

The eighth grader has been handling the Lady Tigers Softball Team's pitching duties since the early season injury to Ava Rainone, the 10th grade pitcher who was on the mound for the Tigers last season.

Utschig was sidelined for the final three games of the regular season due to concussion protocol. Furthermore, with Utschig sidelined and Rainone injured as well, Tigers Head Coach Ted O'Donnell had to result to a position player to pitch against Scarsdale on May 11 and a Junior Varsity arm to throw against Mamaroneck on May 12 to conclude the regular season.

The Tigers lost both games resulting in them losing the remaining four games of the regular season. What is more, two of the remaining four losses were against Scarsdale the number 10-seed and their opponent in the First Round of the Section 1 AA Playoffs.

Utschig did not pitch her best game, but what can you expect after being sidelined for two weeks. The eighth grader relinquished eight hits, two walks, three hit-batsmen and struckout six Raiders, as she worked off the rust from her two-week layoff.

"Ella has not played competitively for two weeks," commented O'Donnell, regarding his ace pitcher. "She has been out with a concussion and we have been Scarsdale catcher Sophia Carroll slides safe into third base in the fifth inning. Carroll later scored on a sacrifice fly by second baseman Hope Walker, to put the Raiders ahead, 3-0. But the Lady Tigers scored two runs in each of the sixth and seventh innings to come from behind and beat Scarsdale, 4-3, in the First Round of the Section 1 Playoffs, at WPHS, on Friday.

following the protocol, while easing her back in the last week. She battled in this game, she battled," stated O'Donnell.

Nonetheless, with the Raiders gaining an early lead 3-0 by the top of the fifth inning, Utschig came to the plate and slugged a single with bases loaded to score two runs. Utschig was thrown out trying to stretch but she put her team on the scoreboard and back in the game.

"It is rough coming back from two weeks not playing, so it was a bit hard for me, but in the end, I am proud of how our team stuck together," said Utschig, who blanked the Raiders, in the top of the seventh inning.

With the score 3-2 in the Raiders favor and the Lady Tigers down to their final three outs, O'Donnell said, "I thought we definitely had a shot with the batters we had coming up." But, he had better than "a shot." The Tigers won 4-3.

Raiders' pitcher Sam Hausman pitched a remarkable game but she hit the leadoff batter senior Sophia Rainone, to start the bottom of the seventh inning. Her younger sister Ava Rainone survived a fielder's choice and Scarsdale first basemen Mia Carroll leaned her hand on the fence and made a beautiful catch on Erin Patterson's foul ball.

Then with two outs, another Tigers eighth grader Alexa Galligani slammed a double to centerfield to score Rainone with the tying run. The youth struck again when ninth grader Zoey Kovach hit a walk-off single to score Galligani and the Lady Tigers celebrated a monumental First Round Playoff come-from-behind victory over the Raiders 4-3.

"It felt amazing, we did it, we came from behind, we came out with the win and that is really what it is all about," exclaimed Kovach, another young star for the Tigers Softball Team.

However, the number seven-seeded Lady Tigers season came to a dramatic end when they were defeated by number two-seed Yorktown High School, at Yorktown, on Monday.

Tigers Girls Lacrosse Beats Arlington for Quarterfinals Victory

The Lady Tigers Lacrosse Team beat Arlington High School, 15-8, in the Quarterfinals of the Section 1-A Playoffs. The Lady Tigers advance to the Semifinals, where they will meet the number 1-seeded North Rockland High School.

The number 5-seeded Lady Tigers stickers led 9-3 at the half and outscored the Admirals, 6-5, in the second half to secure the 15-8 victory. Tigers senior Abby Leone had six goals, while scoring her 150th career high-school goal in the game.

Lady Tigers Alexa Donahoe had four goals and two assists and Maddie Povemba scored twice against the Admirals. Tigers Julia Mancini also celebrated a milestone, while achieving her 100th career-point in the game.

The number 15-seeded Tigers Boys Lacrosse Team did not fare as well as their Lady counterparts; They lost, 15-8, to the number seven-seeded Lakeland/Panas in the First Round of Section 1 Class A Playoffs.

Tigers pitcher Ella Utschig (pictured) even did it with the bat, as she hit a two-run single in the bottom of the sixth inning to make the score 3-2, and begin the White Plains comeback. She was followed-up in the seventh inning by teammates eighth grader Alexa Galligani's tying hit and ninth grader Zoey Kovach's walk-off single to beat Scarsdale, 4-3.

White Plains High School Softball eighth grade pitcher Ella Utschig came back from a two week layoff due to concussion protocol to pitch the Lady Tigers to a 4-3 come-from-behind win over Scarsdale in the Quarterfinals of the Section 1 AA Playoffs.

Liberty Head to County Center After Opening Season Loss to Sky

By Albert Coqueran

On Wednesday, May 16, the NY Liberty, one of the original franchises in the WNBA, officially opened their 22rd

NY Liberty 2018 WNBA First Round Draft Selection Kia Nurse proved she is ready for WNBA competition, as she scored 17 points and dished three assists in the Liberty 2018 Season Opener on the road against the Chicago Sky. Nurse was the 10th overall pick this year in the WNBA Draft out of UCONN.

season with Media Day at the Madison Square Garden Training Facility in Greenburgh.

First year Head Coach Katie Smith will be assisted this season by third-year Assistant Coach Herb Williams, who joined the Liberty after spending 13 seasons as an assistant coach for the NY Knicks. Williams also played for the orange-and-blue, while spending two intervals with the Knicks from 1992-'96 and 1996-'99, after a short tenure with the Toronto Raptors in 1996.

Smith also brings back her former teammate with the Detroit Shock, Barbara Farris, who is an 11-year veteran of the WNBA. Farris and Smith played together for one year on the Shock in 2009. Farris previously spent two seasons as an assistant coach (2013-14) and nine seasons as a player (1998-2009) with the Liberty.

Legendary point-guard Teresa Weatherspoon also returns to the Liberty for her third season as Director of Player Development. Weatherspoon is very familiar with the environment of the Westchester County Center, after spending last season as the Color Analyst for the Westchester Knicks.

"First of all, I had a wonderful time being the Color Analyst for the Westchester Knicks," expressed Weatherspoon. "The atmosphere is amazing, especially when the arena is filled. It is an intimate setting without a bad seat in the building. We are going to make this place home," stated Weatherspoon, regarding the Liberty playing a majority of their home games this season at the Westchester County Center.

The Liberty opened their 2018 season on the road against the Chicago Sky, in the Sky's Wintrust Arena, on Sunday, May 20. The shorthanded Liberty lost to the Sky, 80-76.

The Ladies of Liberty were without centers Kia Vaughn and Kia Stokes. Vaughn is finishing her season overseas in Turkey and Stokes is recovering from an injury. The Liberty was also missing prolific shooting-guard Epiphanny Prince, who is also still overseas completing her season in Russia.

Katie Smith began her first season as NY Liberty Head Coach with an 80-76 loss to the Chicago Sky, in Chicago, Illinois. On Friday, May 25, Smith will lead the Ladies of Liberty into their new home, the Westchester County Center, to face the defending WNBA Champion Minnesota Lynx.

The Liberty were led in the loss to the Sky by five-time WNBA All-Star center Tina Charles, who scored 19 points, while their 2018 WNBA First-Round Draft choice, guard Kia Nurse contributed 17 points and three assists in her WNBA debut. Amanda Zauhi B. picked up some of the slack for the missing Vaughn and Stokes, while scoring 15 points and grabbing seven rebounds. The Sky was led by guard Allie Quigley with a game-high 22 points.

"We have to hit shots. They hit shots and we didn't. That was honestly the biggest difference (in the game)," commented Smith, after the Liberty shot 36% and the Sky 47.6 % in the game.

Hopefully, the Ladies of Liberty will shoot better and have a positive result when they open their new home-court at the Westchester County Center, against the reigning WNBA Champion Minnesota Lynx, on Friday, May 25, at 7:30 p.m.

The Liberty will launch their inaugural season at the County Center with a pregame Fanfest presented by Chase. The Liberty Fanfest will begin at 5:30 p.m. and will feature an on-site DJ, Pop-A-Shot, photo booth, face painting and airbrush tattooing.

The Liberty's next home game will be against the Dallas Wings, at the Westchester County Center, on Tuesday, May 29, at 7 p.m.
