Greenburgh PBA Brings Circus to John A. Coleman School

The Greenburgh Police Benevolent Association (PBA) recently brought its annual circus to the White Plains campus of the John A. Coleman School. Students were dazzled with magic tricks and illusions and were thrilled by the daring feats performed. Some of the students got to participate in the show, like Lailah, pictured here balancing a plate on a long pole. After the performance, students received ice pops, T-shirts and police officer action figures. "Greenburgh PBA has been sponsoring this event for over 85 years," said Detective Ed DeVito of the Greenburgh Police Department and Vice President of the Greenburgh PBA. "For the last 15 years I have had the honor to be the Circus Chairman and each and every year I think how I can make their day special, make a difference and see these amazing children smile, but it's them whom make a difference in me and make me smile," DeVito said.

NYS DOT Discusses Ardsley Road Repairs With Greenburgh Interns

By Pat Casey

The Town of Greenburgh and 36 student interns with summer jobs in the town had planned a rally for Aug. 2 in front of Macy Park in Greenburgh to encourage New York State DOT to repave Saw Mill River Road in downtown Ardsley.

The call for a rally came from frustration over the neglected condition of State roads in Greenburgh that have become safety hazards.

Instead of a rally, the student interns were granted a meeting by the Governor's office, which took place last week.

According to Greenburgh Town Supervisor Paul Feiner, the last time any NYS road was paved in Greenburgh was at least three years ago. As a result, many of these roads have dangerous potholes, which are a main cause of damages to residents' vehicles. Some of these problems include punctured tires, damages to the engine, as well as other parts. The worst of these roads is Saw Mill River Road, commonly referred to as Route 9A. Large trucks often drive on this stretch of road, making it difficult for smaller vehicles to avoid both the trucks and the potholes, Feiner said.

The Greenburgh Summer Interns worked tirelessly, Feiner commented, to spread the word about this issue. Together, with the Town, they created a petition demanding action from the state government. Apparently, it was noticed.

An email from Feiner after the meeting indicated it was very productive and

Enhanced Communication Sought to Better Protect Schools

By Anna Young

With school threats becoming more frequent, the Westchester County District Attorney's office met with more than two dozen police officers and school resource officers last week to enhance communication that will better protect school communities.

During the first-ever School Resource Officer Summit, held at the Westchester Intelligence Center (WIC) in White Plains, officers from more than a dozen police departments partnered with county officials to help combat threats on social media and discuss other safety concerns.

District Attorney Anthony Scarpino said the goal of the summit was to form a centralized network of information sharing that connects the more than 40 school districts and law enforcement agencies within the county. School safety is at the top of our agenda now, he said.

"These are very difficult times for school districts," Scarpino said at the Aug. 2 conference. "It is at the top of the county executive and the district attorney's agenda because we feel it's important that our students feel safe when they go to school as much as humanly possible."

Andrew Ludlum, acting executive director of the WIC, said creating an information sharing grid is essential to ensuring that anyone who is responsible for school safety receives the same training in a tight and effective communications network.

"What we do here is to steer to the network information and intelligence which will help them do their jobs better and that can touch on social media threats, actual threats of violence, and our goal here is to be primarily engaged in the prevention stage," Ludlum said.

Along with social media threats, the county's intelligence staff also tracks signs of bullying, internet threats, social media issues, hate crimes, and triggers that indicate a student in crisis.

Scarpino added that school resource officers are a valuable link to providing information and developing trust within their districts to combat potential threats.

"There is no silver bullet to this problem, but you are one of the bullets that we use," Scarpino told officers. "We know if we work together that the benefits will be significant to all of us."

"The intelligence staff tracks bullying, Internet threats, social media issues, hate crimes, and student in crisis triggers."

Larchmont Det. Lisa Pompilio, a school resource officer for the Mamaroneck School District, agreed that resource officers have become an asset to the students, parents, and school and law enforcement officials. She said information sharing is vital to bridging the gap between the school districts and police department.

"Now as SRO's come into play more often, it's nice to have a group of people where we can reach out to, make some phone calls to, run things across," Pompilio said.

While officials plan to meet with law enforcement four or five times a year, Scarpino said his office is also developing a school safety commission. The group will consist of law enforcement, school administrators, PTA members and mental health professionals to develop best practices in security.

"We're trying to attack this from as many fronts as we possibly can and try to do the best we can," Scarpino said. "Our main responsibility is to ensure that Westchester is the safest community that we can make it and the healthiest community we can make it and maintain that."

The student interns discussed the budgetary process, how NYS prioritizes road repaving, bridge reconstruction issues and much more.

"We are very grateful to the Governor's office for helping to set up this meeting and appreciative of the fact that state officials listened to the concerns raised by student interns. Today's student interns may become tomorrow's elected officials," Feiner concluded.

Two Police Veterans to Head Westchester County Dept. of Public Safety

By Anna Young

Westchester County Executive George Latimer appointed two longtime police veterans to head the Department of Public Safety last week.

During a press conference in White Plains last Friday, Thomas Gleason was sworn in as the department's newest commissioner filling the vacancy created by George Longworth, who retired in January to return to his Dobbs Ferry law practice. Martin McGlynn has served as acting public safety commissioner.

"We have two gentlemen taking on these responsibilities who are extremely well prepared," Latimer said. "Both of them know police work from the ground up, these are individuals who have experienced everything that our police experience. We are fortunate to have both of these men take on these responsibilities."

Gleason, who was sworn in by Judge Kathy Davidson, thanked his family for their support and Latimer for instilling him with his faith and confidence to lead the department. Gleason was chosen after nearly two-dozen applicants were interviewed this year, according to Deputy County Executive Ken Jenkins.

"As a member of this great department for more than 35 years, I think my appointment sends a message to all the men and women in the department, from whether it's the newest rookie or the most senior veteran officer on the job, that one day they can aspire to lead this great department," Gleason said. "I have a deep sense of pride and affection for this department and I want to do all that I can do to make it an even better place before I retire and pass the reigns on to the next commissioner."

Gleason joined the department in 1983 as a patrol officer and quickly rose through the ranks of detective, sergeant and lieutenant after just 10 years on the job. Gleason has worked and supervised in every division within the department, including special investigations, narcotics, welfare fraud, and field services. The Yonkers native was promoted to captain in 2007 and inspector in 2013.

Former Mount Vernon police commissioner Terrance Raynor was chosen to serve as the new deputy commissioner of public safety. Latimer said he was impressed with Raynor's leadership in Mount Vernon and looks forward to what he'll provide the county.

Raynor joined the Mount Vernon Police Department in 1984 and spent time in patrol, the uniformed task force and the motorcycle unit before rising through the ranks. Raynor was made chief of police in 2003 and served in that role for three years until he became the chief criminal investigator for the county District Attorney's Office. In 2013, Raynor returned to Mount Vernon to serve as police commissioner.

"I look forward to continuing to enhance the professionalism of the police department and working towards making Westchester County the finest county in the country," Raynor said.

Grant to Provide Rescue Training for White Plains Fire Department

The White Plains Fire Department was awarded a $336,430 federal Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AFG) on Aug. 1 to provide rescue training for personnel in the fire department's Rescue Company.

"New York's first responders put their lives on the line to protect our communities, and we must ensure that they have the training to perform their critical public service while ensuring their own safety," said Congresswoman Nita Lowey (D-Harrison) who worked to make the grant possible.

The Rescue Company is staffed 24/7 and responds to emergencies including fires, building collapses, trench collapses, and vehicle accidents. The City of White Plains is required to provide a 10 percent match of the federal grant, for a total of $370,073 for the White Plains Fire Department.

The AFG Program is administered by the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

This latest FEMA grant brings the total received by the White Plains Fire Department up to almost $4 million. That includes a Staffing for Adequate Fire & Emergency Response (SAFER) grant of $1.9 million in 2010, which enabled the City to rehire nine firefighters, and a federal grant of $330,000 in 2016 to upgrade safety packs for firefighters.

"This grant funding will enable the White Plains Fire Department to provide enhanced rescue training to its personnel, an important component of their work that encompasses rescue in many different types of situations," White Plains Mayor Tom Roach said, thanking Lowey for her advocacy.

Better Signage to Stop Bridge Strikes

New York State commits to installing better signage to help stop bridge strikes by trucks on parkways.

Westchester County Executive George Latimer called on the state to do something after the number of incidents began to increase in recent months. The current effort will be to install more dramatic and eye catching signs to warn truck drivers about the low bridges on the Hutchinson River Parkway. The State has installed temporary signs that boldly tell drivers "TRUCKS MUST EXIT NOW" at both approaches to the King Street Avenue Bridge on the Hutchinson River Parkway. The State has also informed the County that permanent highly visible signs are in the works.

On July 13, Latimer pulled together officials from Scarsdale, Mamaroneck, Rye Brook, Rye, along with the New York State Department of Transportation (NYSDOT), state elected officials and the Trucking Association of New York to work together to find ways to stop bridge strikes on the Hutchinson River Parkway and other parkways in Westchester County.

Latimer said: "This is a problem and it is going to stop. We are going to make every effort we can to try to end this. This is a solvable problem. And, I confidently believe that rational people working together can make a difference."

After the meeting, Latimer said there isn't going to be one solution, but rather many. Among them:

- NYSDOT agreed to do an immediate assessment of dramatic signage prior to the King Street Bridge on the Hutchinson River Parkway.
- The Trucking Association of New York will work with the County Executive's office to establish an education program for users of all parkways that would explain the County's Parkway System.
- Outreach to mapping companies, like Google Maps and Waze, to update their software to add in warnings for trucks and other commercial vehicles.
- Westchester County Police to gather a breakdown of the statistics on the bridge strikes and the NYSDOT to also share the data they have collected.
- Evaluate the location where the height barrier ("head banger") system could be tested.

• Review of bridge strikes on the Bronx River Parkway.

• NYSDOT to alert local police in real time, along with County Police, of trucks entering parkway.

The New York State Bridge Strike Task Force is set to meet August 22 at the Hudson Valley Traffic Management Center. That group includes the MTA; Port Authority, New York State Police, New York City representatives as well as representatives from Long Island.

Car Crashes into Pleasantville Pharmacy; Elderly Customer Hospitalized

By Anna Young

An elderly Chappaqua man crashed his silver Toyota Highlander into Pleasantville Pharmacy on Wheeler Avenue midday on Friday, destroying the front window, large segments of the interior and sending one shopper to the hospital.

The impact of the crash knocked a female customer inside the pharmacy to the floor, and she was brought to Westchester Medical Center as a precaution, but authorities said she was not in critical condition. The driver, Ray MacDonnell, 90, was not injured, nor was his wife, Patricia, 81, who was seated in the passenger seat.

The customer was standing by the front register when the car crashed through the pharmacy, according to employees. Although authorities are not releasing the name of the customer, pharmacy employees did say she is an elderly

Pleasantville resident.

At 12:15 Friday afternoon, following a visit to the pharmacy, Ray MacDonnell was backing out of a parking spot on Wheeler Ave. and bumped a parked car. After hitting the other vehicle, MacDonnell put his car into drive instead of park by mistake and barreled into the pharmacy at a high speed — at what appeared to be about 50 miles per hour, estimated one eyewitness.

“There was an elderly woman who tried to run as she had entered the store, and she fell because she was trying to run, she lost her balance,” said the eyewitness who was standing in the front of the store at the time of the accident. “She was not hit by the vehicle. I was very worried about her because of how she fell but thank goodness nobody was seriously injured or killed. It was horrifying. Glass flying, metal... and it sounded like he was about to maneuver his car again while it was inside the store.”

While police issued MacDonnell a summons for driving off the roadway, they said the crash is still under investigation.

The Examiner did speak with several pharmacy employees who were present at the time of the incident shortly after it occurred.

“He just lost control,” said pharmacy employee Karen Alvarez, who was standing at the front register when the accident happened. “I just ran. He could have killed someone. It was just that severe.”

An elderly customer inside the pharmacy fell to the floor and she was taken to the hospital. Authorities said she was not in critical condition.

A silver Toyota Highlander Crashed Into the Pleasantville Pharmacy midday on Friday.

Another employee, Heather Johnson, noted how the MacDonnell's “were absolutely terrified.”

“They couldn't believe they hit a store,” she also said. “They seemed startled and lost control of the car.”

Pharmacy employee Alexander Twomey was standing in the back of the pharmacy when he heard a honk and saw the car crash through the front.

“It was just surreal,” said Twomey. “You see it in the movies and you don't know if you should run or what to do.”

The MacDonnell's are regular customers of the pharmacy and had just finished picking up prescriptions, Twomey said.

“We're all shook up,” Patricia MacDonnell told The Examiner after the accident.

Despite the wreckage, pharmacy employees resumed business as usual setting up a table on the sidewalk and distributing prescriptions to their loyal clientele. Pleasantville Pharmacy did take to Facebook alerting customers the store would remain open and explained the best way customers can show their support as they face clean-up and renovations.

“As the dust begins to settle and losses are being assessed and papers are being filled out, we also need to rebuild as we wait for insurance reimbursements,” the post read. “In the upcoming weeks and months ahead, it will be tough as we are just a small mom and pop store. With that being said, any and all sales, no matter how small they may be, will most definitely help us.”

Mosquitos With West Nile Virus Found in Westchester

The Westchester County Health Department announced that this season's first two batches of mosquitoes carrying West Nile Virus in Westchester were identified in Yonkers. The area surrounding the positive mosquito batches was inspected by the Health Department, which has treated nearby catch basins to protect against further mosquito breeding nearby.

Westchester County Executive George Latimer recommended residents follow the Health Department's West Nile Virus prevention advice to avoid mosquito bites by using repellents and removing standing water after it rains.

“Mosquitoes are often thought of as merely a nuisance but they can carry serious diseases, including West Nile Virus,” Latimer said. “It's important to remember we can keep mosquitoes from breeding and biting us in our own backyards if we pour out standing water after it rains and remove or turn over wheelbarrows and watering cans.”

To date, these are the first two positive batches out of 134 batches of mosquitoes collected in Westchester that were tested for West Nile Virus by the New York State Department of Health. Statewide, the state Health Department had identified 69 positive mosquito batches as of July 20.

“The summer months are when we expect to find mosquitoes carrying West Nile Virus here,” said Sherlita Amler, MD, Commissioner of Health. “Besides removing standing water around your home, to protect yourself and your family when you spend time outdoors, it's a good idea to use repellents, especially from dawn to dusk, when mosquitoes are most active.”

Throughout the season, the Department traps and tests mosquitoes to track the presence of mosquito-borne viruses in the County. Last year, West Nile Virus was identified in five local mosquito batches out of 380 submitted for testing and three people were diagnosed with West Nile Virus.

West Nile Virus infection most often causes a mild or moderate flu-like illness, but can be more serious particularly for people 60 and older, and those with other health complications. Three residents were diagnosed with West Nile Virus last year and all recovered.

To reduce the chances for mosquitoes to breed and bite around your home, follow these tips:

- Avoid the outdoors in the late afternoon and early evening when mosquitoes are active and feeding, and use insect repellents when outdoors during these times. Follow the label instructions.
- To protect infants over two months of age, adults can apply insect repellents with up to 30 percent DEET to their own hands and then rub it onto their children. Products containing DEET are not recommended for use on children under two months of age.
- Wear long pants, long-sleeved shirts and socks when outdoors, especially in areas where mosquitoes are active and feeding.

- Discard or turn over cans, plastic containers and ceramic pots outside your home to avoid accumulating water.
- Remove standing water from outdoor toys and play houses.
- Remove discarded tires.
- Drill holes in the bottoms of all recycling containers that are left outdoors.
- Turn over plastic wading pools, buckets and wheelbarrows when not in use.
- Change the water in birdbaths at least twice weekly.
- Keep storm drains and gutters clear of leaves and debris.
- Chlorinate swimming pools, outdoor spas and hot tubs until properly winterized or drained for the season. Also, if not chlorinated, drain any water that collects on their covers.

Residents who notice large areas of standing water on public property should report them to the Westchester County Department of Health at 914-813-5000.

DMV's Tips on How Best to Apply for an Upgrade to a REAL ID

The New York State Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) has issued a list of the top five mistakes that customers make when applying for a REAL ID and offers tips on how to avoid them.

These errors can cause a customer's application for a REAL ID to be delayed or denied, requiring them to make multiple trips to the DMV.

Terri Egan, executive deputy commissioner of DMV, said the agency's goal is to make the transition to a REAL ID as simple as possible. A REAL ID-compliant driver's license, permit or nondriver ID is now required to enter certain federal buildings; starting Oct. 1, 2020, it will be required to board domestic flights.

The DMV has created an online document guide that shows customers everything they need to bring with them to be properly prepared for their visit. It also has staff out this summer at certain airports and large public events to educate New Yorkers about this new federal requirement.

"When customers come prepared for their visit, it alleviates frustrations for them, reduces wait times for other customers and helps our staff provide the highest level of customer service," Egan said.

A REAL ID is available at DMV offices statewide. The cost is the same as getting a standard New York State license, permit or non-driver ID. All standard ID cards are now marked not for federal purposes.

Customers applying for a REAL ID or enhanced document should follow the tips below to avoid a second trip to the DMV. These are the top five mistakes to avoid when applying.

- Not Providing Proof of Middle Name or Name Change

If a middle name appears on some but not all of your documents, you must bring a government-issued document such as a social security card, birth certificate or U.S. passport to provide proof of their full legal name.

In addition, if a customer's first or last name has changed due to marriage, divorce or a court granted name change, they must provide documentation showing proof of the name change. For example, if a customer's maiden name appears on their birth certificate but their married name appears on their social security card, then they must provide an original government-issued marriage certificate showing the reason for the change. If a customer's name has changed multiple times, they must provide proof of each change to show the connection.

- Bringing Photocopies Instead of Original Documents

As part of the federal requirements for getting a REAL ID, customers must visit a DMV office to have a new picture taken and present original documents that prove their full legal name, New York State residency and social security number, among other identification.

Customers must bring original documents to the DMV such as an original birth certificate, social security card or government-issued marriage certificate.

- Not Checking the Online Document Guide Before Visiting the DMV

The DMV document guide, which can be found at dmv.ny.gov/documentguide, will show customers exactly what documents they need to bring for their visit, such as a utility bill, U.S. passport and more. The document guide also allows customers to print the list of documents they need. Outdated or expired documents will not be accepted.

- Using Nicknames

Many DMV customers commonly use nicknames, abbreviated names or confirmation names when applying for a New York State issued license or ID card. Federal requirements do not allow DMV to issue REAL IDs to customers under any name other than their full legal name. If a nickname, abbreviated name or confirmation name appears on any of the customer's proof documents, they must show additional proof of their full legal name or proof of a court-granted name change.

- Not Providing Appropriate Proof of Residency

Customers applying for a REAL ID must provide two proofs of New York State residency. A New York State license, permit or nondriver ID card, a recent bank statement or a recent paystub showing the customer's current New York State address are among the acceptable proofs of residency. Documents with a post office box listed cannot be accepted. The DMV will accept certain electronic documents such as a utility bill, credit card statement or paystub if they are printed.

Additionally, some documents issued after a certain date will not be accepted. For example, a bank statement or utility bill that is provided as proof of residency must have been issued within 120 days of the customer's visit to DMV.

For more information about DMV, visit dmv.ny.gov or follow the DMV conversation online on Facebook and Twitter.

Federal Legislation Will Assist Individuals Suffering From Alzheimer's

The House of Representatives recently passed the Palliative Care and Hospice Education and Training Act (PCHETA) (S.693/H.R.1676). PCHETA will increase the availability and quality of care by establishing palliative care and hospice workforce training programs, creating a national education and awareness campaign about the benefits of palliative care and enhancing research in its delivery.

I commend and thank Congressman Eliot Engel for his leadership in introducing this bill, which will be a great step forward for the care of individuals with Alzheimer's disease. Although there was encouraging news recently about a new medication that has been effective in reducing amyloid in the brain in clinical trials, there is still no cure for Alzheimer's. By focusing on managing pain, easing symptoms and increasing comfort, palliative and hospice care can improve the quality of life for those in the late stages of the disease, those for whom a cure will come too late.

PCHETA now moves on to be considered by the Senate. It is my hope that it will quickly pass and become law, so that the benefits of palliative care and hospice will be more widely utilized. Until there is a cure for Alzheimer's, we must do all we can to ensure that those with the disease have the highest quality of care that can be provided.

Tips for Creating a Successful Back-to-School Carpool

It's time to get back into the school mindset, which for parents means school supplies, packing lunches and carpools.

A carpool arrangement can be the school year's greatest gift, but the key to a seamless schedule is good communication and a solid set of rules. With these best practices, parents can help ensure a safe and smooth ride for all the carpool passengers throughout the school year:

Develop a contact list: Compile a contact list that includes the names of every child and adult involved in the carpool, along with addresses and phone numbers. Print several copies of the list. Keep one copy in the car and share the remaining copies with the other families participating in the carpool.

Create a calendar: Discuss scheduling needs and clearly outline who goes where and when each day of the week. This calendar may change over time, so consider sharing a document electronically for easy updates and to keep everyone on the same page.

Prioritize safety: New car seat options are making it easier to ensure every child is protected in the back seat. For example, Keep safety and portability top-of-mind when organizing school carpools.

the Graco TurboBooster TakeAlong Highback Booster and Backless Booster provide safety on-the-go and are designed for ultimate portability. In both highback booster mode and backless booster mode, big kids from 40 to 100 lb. can be safely transported. In highback mode, the seat back nests inside the seat bottom, making it simple to transport the booster from car to car. In backless mode, the seat folds to become 50 percent smaller and comes with a carry bag for additional portability. To learn more about these booster seats, visit gracobaby.com.

Minimize distractions: Carpool lanes are often busy, so it's important to stay focused. Don't listen to a podcast or look at your phone. Instead, concentrate on the task at hand -- getting children safely where they need to go.

Provide snacks: After school, kids are typically hungry and will want a snack during the car ride home. Talk to the other parents about what food you plan to provide for their children. Be mindful, many children have allergies or dietary restrictions, so factor this in before snack time.

A well-run carpool is a blessing for any busy parent. With these tips, you'll be able to start the new school year off on the right foot and ensure the carpool runs smoothly and safely.

The Calming Power of Water Bring Health and Wellness Benefits

By Joanne Witmyer

"The sea, once it casts its spell, holds one in its net of wonder forever."

—Jacques-Yves Cousteau

Recently, I moved to one of the villages along the Hudson River. My morning exercise now includes a walk along the water with my dog Griffin. Generally, we follow the same path each day unless Griffin wants to take a detour to dig in the sand.

On that path, there are variations to observe each day with curiosity: where the tide level is; whether the water is calm or choppy; what color the river is depending on the sunlight's reflection; how it sounds; and what types of shore birds are out in the morning.

Oceans, rivers, lakes, streams, waterfalls and even puddles spark feelings of creativity and playfulness in me. It's interesting to consider some of their other health and wellness benefits.

Calm Sounds

Sounds of the water are soothing; you've probably noticed that noise machines (the kind that feature sounds designed to help us sleep more restfully) include brooks babbling, waves softly crashing at the shore or raindrops quietly falling against the ground. Though the sounds of some types of water aren't necessarily quiet, the repetitive and uncomplicated acoustics offer ease to the listener.

Fresh Air/Sunshine

Getting outside to walk along the Hudson River allows us to enjoy being in nature. Fresh air can clear the mind and allow us to be more focused throughout the day. And the vitamin D produced by your body when it absorbs sunlight helps to boost the immune system and even out your moods.

Stress Reduction

When our minds are overstimulated by electronic devices, loud noises or artificial lights, it's beneficial to be near water's simple rhythms of waves and the ebb and flow of the tides. This helps us to reduce stress and focus on the elements of nature.

What is your favorite place to be near, on or in the water? I look forward to you sharing with me!

The Asphalt Jungle Changes Meaning in the Suburbs

When you hear the term The Asphalt Jungle, the title of a 1950 film noir based on the novel of the same name by W. R. Burnett, you probably think of underworld activities in the city, but in the suburbs, the words could very well describe the constant battle of maintaining our town roads.

And the surprisingly bad condition of many of our roads today affects the perception of our towns and neighborhoods, as well as the perceived value of our homes.

When I owned a single-family home, it was the first home as one entered my street. And I was keenly aware at one point that it had not been paved in at least 25 years while I was living there. I became very sensitive to this issue when one buyer prospect asked, "Why does your street look so bad?"

However, I remember well when one morning I woke to the sound of equipment operating in the street below my window, and I thought, oh, no, what the heck is happening now? But I rejoiced when, 'lo and behold, I spied through the trees along the street an enormous truck filled with steaming asphalt, a smell that I happen to like, almost comparable to the slight high I get when using rubber cement.

I quickly got dressed and ran down to the street to personally welcome the crew and the highway department head at that time who was there to personally supervise the job.

Why was it such a long time between pavings? I asked him. He replied that because of tightened budgets, roads which had been on a 10-year cycle for re-paving had been extended to a 20-year cycle." I guess somehow my street got lost in the shuffle because I could personally testify to the fact that its life far surpassed even the extended cycle.

When I was a child, I traveled with my older sister and my brother-in-law across country and at that time, the main interstate highway going across the southwestern states was Route 66 and this major road was all concrete rather than asphalt, but from the 60s onward, most roads are done in asphalt because of its ease of installation, and repair. However, the heaviest traveled roads are still concrete which is better in bearing the load of really heavy trucks.

You may know the story about how the concrete and automobile lobbies conspired to get the interstate highway system together in this country in the 1950s at the expense of public transportation. It's a fascinating study.

When I moved to my town more than 40 years ago, the main road, then cared for by the county, was still concrete, installed in sections with cracks in between that produced a large, consistent sound as you rode over them. Soon after our arrival, it too was covered with smooth asphalt that looked and rode much better.

You may wonder about the composition of an asphalt mix. Actually liquid asphalt is the heavy black material that is left from crude oil after the other products like gasoline and motor oil are refined from it. Paving asphalt is composed of six percent liquid asphalt, mixed with sand and stone.

The materials are heated to about 300 degrees while mixed, dumped into a very long "slow boy" truck, which then delivers the paving material to the site. The advantage of the large "slow boy" is that it features a conveyor which pushes the mix out on to the road without having to be lifted and dumped."

After the asphalt is spread evenly along the road, a roller, which operates with water cascading over its surface, flattens and compresses the mix, with the water keeping it from sticking to the drum.

Because of that procedure, my street was transformed from the ugliest to the nicest looking in town. The downside was that it made my abutting landscaping look a little overgrown, so I had to catch up with the Joneses and prune everything back so that it matched the sleeker look of the street.

There was always something to keep me busy outside, and this was a small price to pay to guard against the possibility of my stumbling into a pothole in front of my house.

Delicious Culinary Road Trips 2018

By Morris Gut

With good food and scenery in mind we often hit the road this time of the year. I would like to share some recent delectable finds.

Lobster and Summer Breezes on Coastal Maine

We have been visiting beautiful coastal Maine for quite a few years running. We usually stay in charming Kennebunkport (home of the Bush family and Walker Point) and work out from there. Our travel map extends from Portsmouth, New Hampshire up to Portland, to the Rockland/Rockport/Camden area on the mid-coast. We have a car and we don't mind driving.

Our typical first stop when we exit 95 is York, home to Stonewall Kitchen. It is a colorful showroom loaded with their specialty line of foods and condiments with ongoing tastings throughout the day. They hold cooking classes on the premises and guest chef appearances and demos throughout the season. Their bustling restaurant, which serves breakfast and lunch, is where we usually get our first taste of local fare. Their famous Lobster BLT served on Brioche Roll is always a palate pleaser, along with a mug of their outstanding Clam Chowder. Then we drive over to the famous Nubble Lighthouse. We know we have arrived; www.stonewallkitchen.com.

On our first night we hit a favorite 'dive bar' called The Ramp Bar & Grill in charming Cape Porpoise, just minutes from downtown Kennebunkport. It is a bustling tavern that looks out onto a working lobster fishing village harbor. It is loaded with local color, strewn with funky sports and political memorabilia, run by a very friendly staff. You can see Goat Island Lighthouse in the distance. It is cozy, with a good bar and some outside seating, an upstairs section, too. Love their big platter of Fish & Chips served with fries, slaw and tartare sauce. Their fresh Salads and local Mussels with choice of sauces, are also winners. Don't forget the burgers; www.rampgrill.com.

By the way, when in Cape Porpoise you must visit Farm + Table, a beautifully edited artisanal gift shop on Langsford Road. It is housed in a restored big red barn and loaded with kitchen gadgets and local crafts; www.farmtablekennebunkport.com.

A few years ago, we inadvertently walked into a grand opening in the nearby Town of Kennebunk. It was opening day for Boulangerie, a local bakery that had moved into a renovated barnlike building off on a side street in town. It was a revelation of taste and charm. We have made it a regular stop on our visits to the area. We so enjoy their fresh-baked Chocolate Croissants, Ham & Cheese Croissant for late breakfast, their Quiche of the Day, oh, the Asparagus & Cheddar Quiche is sublime, and their Greek Yogurt Muffins. Coffee is good, too; www.aproperbakery.com.

Snug Harbor Farm on Western Ave. just outside of Kennebunkport is a magical nursery. There are 'designer' chickens and ducks roaming the grounds and the flowers and plantings are done in artsy style. Seasonal foodstuffs are available, too. We brought home some Maine grown herbs to add to our patio garden; www.snugharborfarm.com.

Rebecca Charles' Pearl/Spat Oyster Cellar is housed in the former lofty Grissini space on Western Ave., Kennebunkport that had operated under White Barn Management years before. We were excited to visit her new restaurant, as we had been fans of Chef Charles' Pearl Oyster Bar in Manhattan. Her book is in our collection. Though a New Yorker, she had spent many years visiting the Kennebunks. She is generally credited with bringing the Maine 'fish shack' concept she loved so much to the Big Apple in the West Village where she gained legions of followers.

We got there during happy hour and though we had a table reserved, we decided to dine at the bar. It was very comfy and cordial. We shared a platter of pristine local oysters, of course. Couple of beers from Maine Beer Company (Freeport) called, oddly enough: 'Lunch', were a good complement. We followed with Eleanor's Caesar, which was delightful and tasty. As a main course my Pan-Roasted Lobster in a light cream sauce over pasta was delicious and decadent. I savored each mouthful. My companion's Pan-Roasted Halibut was sublime. It is a favorite of hers, and she said it was the best halibut she had ever eaten. Beautifully caramelized on the outside, flaky white inside. (Even better than her other favorite served at Fore Street in Portland.) It seemed to be a pattern as others in the dining room and bar had ordered it, too. The Levain loaf bread we were served was from Boulangerie, and it went very well with our meal.

We have our eyes on the house Bouillabaisse and big Grilled Ribeye served with shoestring fries for our next visit. Love that touch of French Chef Charles displays from time to time; www.pearloysterbar.com.

Deciding where to dine when making our pilgrimage to Portland always revolves around the same group of restaurants. There past few times it has been a tossup between venerable Fore Street, and their newest seafood venture called Scales on the docks off Commercial. We have had very good meals at both. After a couple of happy hour beers at Sebago we decided to revisit Fore Street. But before, we stopped off at Standard Baking Company before they closed to pick up some of their delicious cookies for munching during our travels.

Exploring the Wines of an Up and Coming, Yet Ages-old, Wine Region

By Nick Antonaccio

Over the last few years, Americans have been exposed to new grape varieties from new wine regions in record numbers, and we have been very receptive. These wines have for the most part been of a quality level unparalleled in the United States market. These competitors have made inroads into the traditional domestic market. Yes, Pinot Grigio and Pinot Noir are still beverages of choice, but many consumers have been experimenting with other wines, boosting sales and expanding our palates as never before. Albarino from Spain, red blends from France and the United States, Prosecco from Italy and Rieslings from France and Germany have all been embraced by American wine consumers.

I'm always open to new wines making an entrance onto the stage of American offerings. I never know which of the wines competing for my palate and my wallet will be successful. Of course this whole process can be overwhelming; many Americans find a wine they enjoy and become fiercely loyal to the grape or the producer.

However, experimentation should always be the hallmark in these heady wine times.

One country that I believe should be garnering greater attention is still flying under the radar: Austria.

Grapevines are believed to have been planted in Austria over two thousand years ago by occupying Roman armies. Vineyards flourished along the eastern borders in near proximity to Vienna and the Danube River. Early wines, influenced by the favorable microclimate along the Danube, were light and sweet, suiting the taste of local citizenry.

Centuries later, as Austrian monks began cultivating the vineyards, revamping and enhancing wine production, so too were the country's political and cultural stars on the rise. More sophisticated wines were in demand as Strasbourg and Vienna became cultural capitals, drawing the cognoscenti to their music halls and cafes.

Centuries of avid wine consumption came to a crashing demise in 1985. To enhance flavor and body artificially, over one million gallons of wine were adulterated with a toxic chemical used in the production of anti-freeze. This scandal effectively ended the Austrian wine industry, but ironically jump-started a new era in fine Austrian wines.

As a result of the scandal, new regulations were implemented and monitored; winemakers focused on quality wines to revive the industry.

(Very) slowly, wine consumers discovered these new and improved wines, made from indigenous grapes that were both unique and appealing.

Today, there are thirty-six grape varieties approved for planting: twenty-two whites and fourteen reds.

The most popular white shipped to the United States is Grüner Veltliner. It is crisp, minerally and laced with hints of tropical fruit. Like Albarino or Sauvignon Blanc? Try a $12 Grüner.

Other tantalizing whites trickling into the United States: Riesling, Neuberger, Weissburgunder, Zierfandler and Rotgipfler.

It is the reds that are now trickling into the United States. Although saddled with unfamiliar, indigenous names, these wines could be the next new favorite wine for many Americans. A sampling of the top red wines:

Blaufränkisch: Blackberry and cherry flavors, with high acidity and big tannins make this wine perfect for robust game dishes. Like big, bold wines from the Northern Rhone or Bordeaux? Try several $15 Blaufränkisch wines.

Zweigelt: A lighter, middle ground style, redolent of raspberries and strawberries, this wine is perfect for quaffing and for a BBQ. Like Beaujolais? Try a slightly chilled $15 bottle of Zweigelt.

Blauburgunder: Called Pinot Noir elsewhere in the wine world, this expression, grown on terraces above the Danube, close to Vienna, is typically fruit forward with overtones of chocolate and smokiness. Like Central Coast California Pinot Noir? Try several $16 Blauburgunder wines.

Ready to experiment? You can get on a plane and fly to Vienna and its multitude of wine bars and cafes. Or try Café Sabarsky on the upper east side of Manhattan. You'll be teletransported to Vienna, replete with period décor, food menu and a wine-by-the-glass list begging for experimentation.

Nick Antonaccio is a 40-year Pleasantville resident. For over 25 years he has conducted numerous wine tastings and lectures. Nick is a member of the Wine Media Guild of wine writers. He also offers personalized wine tastings and wine travel services. Nick's credo: continuous experimenting results in instinctive behavior. ## Theater of Nature Showcases Work of Artist Lubomir Tomaszewski

By Anna Young

World-renowned artist Lubomir Tomaszewski was overcome with emotion when he saw his most celebrated works of art hanging in The Art Gallery at the Rockefeller State Park Preserve Sunday afternoon.

The Art Gallery officially opened the doors to its latest exhibition on Aug. 5 featuring Tomaszewski's many works in sculpting, painting and smoke-fired images. The exhibit called "Theater of Nature" showcases Tomaszewski's unique ability to combine metals, stone, woods and paper to project a seamless balance between nature, wildlife and figurative images from the worlds of theater, ballet, and music.

"It's so beautiful," Tomaszewski said of the gallery. "It's above any expectations."

Tomaszewski was born in Poland where he studied sculpture at the Academy of Fine Arts in Warsaw, while also pursuing painting and porcelain design. In 1966, he emigrated to the United States in search of creative freedom and has lived and worked in Easton, Conn. with his wife ever since, gaining international recognition.

His art has been featured in over 250 exhibitions globally and is displayed in many museums, galleries, and private collections, including Laurence Rockefeller and former President

'Swan'- collage, smoke/fire.

Jimmy Carter.

The 95-year-old artist was the moving force behind the Emotionalism movement in the early 1990s. His group, The Emotionalists, were devoted to returning the natural language of expression in art to incite a deeper emotion in the viewer by providing more content and less show. Through this movement, Tomaszewski developed his signature style of painting with fire and smoke.

"He brings out the most wonderful figures in bronze and in steel," curator Audrey Leeds said.

Leeds, who puts on seven exhibitions a year, said she chose to honor Tomaszewski because he proficiently features nature in his work. She said she loves to feature artists who have a nature driven mission.

Throughout the two-hour reception, art lovers shuffled in admiring Tomaszewski's work and speaking with him about his craft. Attendees said they were thrilled to meet him and thanked him for his generosity and years of creativity.

"His sculptures are amazing," Duchess County resident Kara O'Neill said. "How he incorporates the rocks into his sculptures to create animals and people that look realistic is amazing."

With 28 pieces of artwork on display ranging from $800 to $30,000, Leeds hopes viewers will walk away with a greater appreciation for Tomaszewski's unique style of art.

"Art is such a personal thing," Leeds said. "People may respond to the medium that he uses, and others may respond to the subject matter or relate to it."

More than a dozen paintings and several sculptures are on display to Sept. 16. Outdoor sculptures will be displayed for the remainder of the year.

The Art Gallery at the Rockefeller State Park Preserve is located at 125 Phelps Way in Pleasantville. For sales or more information, visit www.friendsrock.org, email proleeds@aol.com or call 914-631-1470 ext. 0.

Come On Rain! Featured at Bryant-Mamaroneck Park StoryWalk

Summer time is here in full swing and there is a new story up on the Bryant-Mamaroneck Park StoryWalk: "Come On Rain!" by Karen Hesse and illustrated by Jon J. Muth.

The main character, young Tess watches as her mother tends to her woeful wilting vegetable patch. The heat is enveloping. Tess, from her perch on the fire escape, scans the sky in hopes of deliverance, and sure enough, those are rain clouds she spies. When the clouds break, everyone steps joyfully to the rain dance.

The StoryWalk, a partnership between the City of White Plains Recreation and Parks Department and the White Plains Public Library, combines a children's story with a popular walking route, located at the Bryant-Mamaroneck Park on the corner of Bryant and Mamaroneck Avenues. The park entrance is on the Mamaroneck Avenue side. Parking is available in the City of White Plains Mamaroneck Avenue parking lot (lower level).

This month's StoryWalk will run through Monday Aug. 20.

Delicious Culinary Road Trips 2018

We usually arrive at Fore Street at 5 p.m. and take our chances. Reservations are often hard to get. The trick is to get there early and wait for whatever first-come first-serve comes up. And the bar is an inviting place to start. We have never been disappointed. We were seated by about 5:45 p.m. and went right to watching this exciting operation at work: the battery of woodburning ovens and grills at the open kitchen, the rotisserie station, the center island waiter station, all ready for another busy night.

We started with a fine, earthy Beet Salad, along with a good basket of the Standard Baking bread and butter. I made their popular Wood Oven Roasted Mussels with garlic almond butter my main course. There was enough to share. One of our favorites here. My companion very much enjoyed her Oven Roasted Halibut. We passed on dessert this time, but we left quite satisfied; www.forestreet.biz.

We stopped in Freeport, Maine for a tasting of the latest brews at Maine Beer Company. It has become one of our favorites on route to L.L. Bean and Red's Eats. A big old-fashioned soft pretzel helps mollify our indulgence.

No trip to Maine's beautiful coastline is complete without a visit to Red's Eats in Wiscasset. It is, in my opinion, one of the best lobster shacks in the state, and serves the best Lobster Roll I have
